Expect More Violence Following Ky's Stand

Buddhists To Meet, Plan Move

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Buddhist organizations called Saturday night for strategy meetings on the heels of a statement by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky that he expects his military regime to remain in power for another year.

The statement at a news conference could set off new political unrest in South Viet Nam. The Buddhists are demanding an early end to military rule.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said the timetable for a return of civilian rule in South Viet Nam "is a matter for decision by the Vietnamese."

In Da Nang, scene of anti-Ky turmoil in April, Mayor Nguyen Van Man said Ky's statement surprised him.

"Bad Time Ahead"

"We are in for a bad time," he said, if Ky stays on.

Ky made his statement at the Binh Tuy Airbase near the Mekong River delta town of Can Tho, about 100 miles southwest of Saigon. This was the first time that he had spelled out clearly the objectives of his 10-man military directorate.

"I expect to stay in power for at least another year — perhaps until the middle of next year," he said. "There is no doubt about that."

He also said he and the army would fight any "neutralist or Communist" government if it emerges from general elections.

Ky added, however: "I am sure that the majority of Vietnamese are anti-Communist. I am sure that no such government will be elected."

Both Washington and the U.S. Embassy here withheld comment.

Ky's Plan

According to Ky, the political program for the nation shapes up as follows:

Elections for a Constituent Assembly some time early this fall, in September or October.

Drafting of the National constitution by the assembly.

Another vote for a Legislative Assembly which, in turn, would name a government according to the pattern of the now-defunct fourth French republic. That would come in the middle of next year, and until that time the military would continue to rule.

The air force vice marshal, whose regime took power 10 months ago, indicated that he and the military expect to continue to play a major role.

But he declined to say whether he would be a candidate in elections.

Ky's statement appeared to constitute a major political development since the military junta gave in to Buddhist demands for elections and a civilian regime. Part of the deal with the Buddhists was that Ky's regime would step down after the elections.

Transplant Patient Near Death

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Robert F. Allen was in critical condition Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital, and his physician said it was only a "matter of time" before death ends his courageous fight against bone cancer.

"He is terminal, and that means just what it sounds like," said Dr. T.E.A. von Dedenroth. "The situation has deteriorated in the last 48 hours."

Allen received nationwide encouragement in February when he volunteered for a revolutionary tumor transplant exchange in Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.

His appeal for a transplant partner who had the same kind of cancer and B-type blood resulted in his being paired with Harry T. Griffith, 63, a former professional baseball player from Flourtown, Pa.

Allen has not been told that Griffith died April 25.

He also has not been told that his own case is considered terminal, said Von Dedenroth.

"He's still fighting," the physician said.

"Apparently the surgery was performed too late. There's a possibility that if they'd gotten to him sooner, something might have worked out."

LBJ Proposes Moon Pact With Russia, Others

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson proposed Saturday that the United States, Soviet Union, and other space powers join in a treaty outlawing military activity on the moon and denying anyone or any nation lunar sovereignty.

Johnson said the objective is to make sure that American astronauts and those of other nations can freely conduct scientific investigations of the moon.

Nonmilitary goals in outer space are attainable, Johnson said, and in his view a treaty is needed to lay down rules for exploration of the moon and other heavenly bodies for peaceful purposes only.

Goes to U.N.

Johnson said the treaty proposal will be discussed first in the United Nations by U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg in the 28-member U.N. Committee on Outer Space.

After that, it would become a matter of formal negotiations among nations involved in outer space exploration looking toward a treaty.

Johnson said "the elements of such a treaty would be as follows:

"The moon and other celestial bodies should be free for exploration and use by all countries. No country should be permitted to advance a claim of sovereignty.

"There should be freedom of scientific investigation, and all countries should cooperate in scientific activities relating to celestial bodies.

"Studies should be made to avoid harmful contamination.

"Astronauts from one country should give any necessary help to astronauts of another country.

"No country should be permitted to station weapons of mass destruction on a celestial body. Weapon tests and military maneuvers should be forbidden.

"Necessary Move"

"I am convinced that we should do what we can—not only for our generation but for future generations—to see to it that serious political conflicts do not arise as a result of space activities. I believe that the time is ripe for action. We should not lose time."

The treaty would be somewhat like that barring the use of Antarctica for the use of military purposes. Twelve nations have signed this treaty, including the Soviet Union and the United States, but some nonsigners have staked out claims there. Such claims are not recognized by the United States or the Soviet Union.

Asked whether Johnson's treaty proposal represents any new concern that the Russians might beat the United States to the moon, deputy press secretary Robert H. Fleming told newsmen at press headquarters here: "I don't see that conclusion out of it at all."

He explained that U.S. studies have reached the stage enabling Johnson to outline in fairly specific terms what he feels should be done to guarantee peaceful uses only of outer space.

The United Nations in 1963 adopted a resolution establishing a policy that members would not station nuclear weapons or other weapons of mass destruction in outer space.

Such a resolution does not have the same force as a formal treaty.

Johnson discussed his proposal in a statement issued by the White House Press Office.

Government Ups Pork Purchases For Armed Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration Saturday reversed an order curtailing pork buying for the military. It acted in the face of declining hog prices and considerable farm belt criticism.

More bacon, ham and pork chops are in store again for armed forces at installations in the continental United States as a result of the announcement by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

They did not specify just when pork buying would be stepped up but said it would be soon.

The order which was reversed had instructed all the armed forces to reduce by 50 per cent for a period of six months their servings of prime pork products to personnel at continental U.S. bases. The services were told to use such items as chicken, eggs, sausage, turkey, seafood and selected beef items instead.

Gandhi Warns Pakistan, China May Renew Fight

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian people were warned Saturday that amid all their other difficulties they may have to face renewed trouble with Pakistan and Communist China.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, touring west-central Indian towns, recalled the recent conflicts with both neighbors and told a crowd in Bhandara that India wants peace, but cannot yield to threats.

It was the second consecutive day Mrs. Gandhi has told her people to guard the security of India, which fought for three weeks against Pakistan last September and clashed with China in the Himalayas in 1962.

Mrs. Gandhi said in Aurangabad on Friday: "We have to keep our army and air force ready. Our people have to stand ready to back up the defense services."

In New Delhi, parliamentary members of Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party circulated an annual report filled with foreboding about China and Pakistan.

The report said China occupied Indian territory in the Himalayas and that if this continued, it might "ignite the flames of a wider conflict."

The warnings came after a period of several months during which India had been at relative peace with its neighbors and was looking inward—trying to solve its food shortages, alleviate a severe drought and settle various internal political and economic difficulties.

Court Decision Aids Fight vs. Obscenity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's Ginzburg decision has given the Post Office a new tool to chip away at obscenity. But the department doesn't intend to use it like a club.

There is no board of censors at the Post Office. Officials say first-class mail remains sacredly private and the department couldn't care less how colorfully an individual might want to express his thoughts to a friend.

But there is growing concern with the "organized peddling of pornography through the mails," as department general counsel, Timothy May put it, and the post office can operate with more assuredness.

The Supreme Court said March 21 in upholding the conviction of publisher Ralph Ginzber that advertising or "pandering" could help establish a publication as obscene.

To the Post Office, this means easier administration of the 1865 Mailing Law under which Ginzburg was convicted and the mails are patrolled for obscenity.

"It makes it easier for us to know what is prosecutable and what isn't," May said.

Or, as Chief Postal Inspector Henry B. Montague explained, earlier high court decisions had "caused some uncertainty and confused federal and state prosecuting authorities."

"Now," he said, "we can consider the pandering element.'

This brings the department to grips with an increasingly irksome problem — the use of legitimately purchased mailing lists to advertise pornographic material.

Here, in the light of the Ginzburg decision, the Post Office can move with more assurance against those who peddle smut for commercial gain.

Similarly, Montague believes the department will be on surer grounds in striking at magazines which serve as middleman for "sex clubs." Some of these clubs, he said, exchange literature and pornographic pictures and build up to wife-swapping and trading sadistic paraphernalia.

Still, there is an atmosphere of restraint at the Post Office, conditioned partly by the liberal view the Supreme Court has taken of publications themselves and partly by the reality that the 10,058 inspectors in the 50 states and territories responsible for guarding against mail fraud, theft and the like, as well as obscenity, can cover just so much ground.

Beaten Viet Cong Head For Cover After Fight

Report 416 VC Killed In Battle

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Survivors of a smashed Communist battalion threw away their weapons and melted into the countryside Saturday in an effort to elude hotly pursuing U.S. air cavalrymen and South Vietnamese troops who already have killed 416 of them.

The allied units wiped out all but a scattering of the mixed Viet Cong-North Vietnamese force of 400 to 500 men in two days of fighting on the rain-soaked coastal flatlands on South Viet Nam's central coast.

But while the U.S. command claimed the biggest allied battleground victory in weeks, ominous signs appeared on the political scene, bringing with them the possibility of new civilian disorders.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, who had promised powerful Buddhist groups his military regime would step down after elections in September or October for an assembly to draft a constitution, told a news conference he expects his government to remain in power for another year. Buddhist organizations in Saigon promptly called for strategy meetings.

The State Department in Washington, commenting on Ky's statement, said the timing to obtain civilian government is a matter for decision by the Vietnamese.

"We assume that as they proceed step by step a schedule will be worked out which will include, among other things, the matter of governmental succession," a department spokesman said.

Antigovernment Buddhist rioting jolted the nation last month. One aspect of those disorders was still to be seen Saturday. At the Vietnamese resort of Dalat, a student group staged a sit-down demonstration for the fourth straight day, continuing their protest of the killing of five students by government soldiers April 21. Two soldiers also were killed in the clashes.

The battleground victory on the central coast overshadowed other military developments. U.S. spokesmen in Saigon said that despite the arrival of monsoon rains, American warplanes had blasted targets in North and South Viet Nam.

A delayed report told of the destruction by U.S. planes of two spans of the Bac Giang railroad and highway bridge 25 miles northeast of Hanoi, the northern capital, cutting a vital supply route from Communist China.

The U.S. Air Force and units of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division accounted for 332 of the Communists killed in Operation Davy Crockett, 10 miles north of Bong Son and about 280 miles northeast of Saigon. The South Vietnamese claimed 84.

Associated Press Correspondent Bob Poos, with the cavalrymen, reported the Communist survivors had followed their usual tactic of throwing away their weapons to facilitate escape. Poos said the enemy force had been identified as the 9th Battalion of the Quyet Tam (Determination) regiment.

In Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman said there was "precious little left" of the enemy unit.

In addition to the enemy death toll, the allied force reported capturing 40 prisoners and questioning 515 persons suspected of being Viet Cong or Viet Cong sympathizers. Presumably those questioned were natives of the area.

The scene of the fighting was near South Viet Nam's Route 1, a main highway that runs along the coast from the 17th parallel to Saigon.

It was the sharpest ground fighting in three weeks. It began Thursday.

Allied casualties were described as light, but in some individual units they were listed as moderate. Allied commands do not report exact numbers of casualties because the information may be helpful to the enemy.

The cavalrymen, South Vietnamese and South Korean troops engaged a Red force in the same area in January, killing 1,300 of them. Units of the 1st Cavalry also killed about the same number of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops in the Ia Drang Valley last November. The valley is in the western highlands near the Cambodian border.

Crash Kills Pilot, 5 Sky Divers

POTTSTOWN, Pa. (AP) —Five of six sky divers and their pilot were killed Saturday as their single engine plane carrying them on a parachute accuracy drop contest crashed, exploded and burned two miles from their objective.

The monoplane, powered by a 450-horsepower engine, crashed on a farm field shortly after take-off from the New Hanover Airport. Apparently it was circling to come back for the competitive jump. It was the first flight of the sky-diving meet, canceled after the disaster.

Trapped

Four of the jumpers and the pilot were trapped in the cabin of the plane and plummeted with it to their deaths. Another got clear and jumped, but apparently his chute tangled in the tail assembly and failed to open. He hit th ground within 35 feet of the burning wreckage.

The sixth diver survived, leaping from the disabled craft as it spun earthward. He jumped from an altitude of 500 feet and landed safely, uninjured but badly shaken by the tragedy.

MONMOUTH SCHOOL FOR RETARDED GETS FEDERAL GRANT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Warren Achievement School at Monmouth is the first Illinois unit with proposed construction for mentally retarded children to receive approval of federal funds under a 1963 law.

Gov. Otto Kerner announced Saturday the federal grant of $96,982 is 39 per cent of the total cost of $248,672. The modern building for handicapped children will about double the school enrollment of 26 children and young adults.

The diagnostic, educational, training and treatment center has been serving Warren, Mercer, and Henderson counties since 1961.

Children 2 to 16 years of age, who are not acceptable in the public school system because of mental, physical, emotional or environmental handicaps, are admitted to the day-care center.

NAME HANDICAPPED MOTHER OF YEAR

CHICAGO (AP) — A Morris, Ill., woman, paralyzed from the waist down since 1963, was honored Saturday as Handicapped Mother of the Year by the Rehabilitation Institute.

Mrs. Phyllis Harbin, 24, confined to a wheelchair since her spinal cord was injured in an auto accident, is the mother of Linda, 3, and Carleen, 8 months.

A Decatur woman is to be honored Sunday as Mother of a Handicapped Patient. Mrs. E. A. Carlson is credited with giving her daughter, Linda, 18, the will and strength to face personal tragedy.

Lind.. was rendered a quadriplegic as the result of an auto accident and is said to be the most disabled patient ever treated by the institute.

FORD CLAIMS LBJ SET TO HIKE TAXES

MACON, Ga. (AP) — House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said Saturday President Johnson is getting ready to raise taxes and then blame it on Congress and the housewife.

In a speech prepared for a Georgia State Republican convention, Ford called for Republican gains in Congress "to steer this nation back into sound paths."

"If the Republican party picks up at least 40 additional seats—as I fully expect—this nation's course will change," he said.

Ford said government statistics show increased living costs this year will eat up 3 to 5 cents of every dollar earned. And the main thrust of inflationary pressures comes from federal spending, he said.

Backs Commission To Reassess U.S., Chinese Relations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is actively supporting a proposal by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., for creation of a high-level commission to reassess U.S. relations with Communist China.

Humphrey, who has called for "containment without isolation" of Red China, has told associates he regards as excellent the proposal made by the late President John F. Kennedy's youngest brother and seconded by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Although he has been silent about President Johnson's reaction, Humphrey's endorsement of a commission study is interpreted as indicating a willingness on the part of the administration to explore new avenues toward Asian policies.

This contrasts with the State Department's cool reception for the commission suggestion when it was made in the Senate last Tuesday by Kennedy and McGovern.

At that time department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the proposal would be studied. But he added that problems with Peking long have been receiving constant attention at the highest level of government.

There also is the aspect of Humphrey's willingness to get behind a call for a "major reassessment" of policies by a senator who might be considered, along with his brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., as a potential rival for the Democratic presidential nomination in the future.

The public endorsement given the Kennedy-McGovern proposal by Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is not expected to arouse Johnson's enthusiasm for it. Fulbright has been highly critical of the President's Viet Nam policies, the Kennedys slightly less so.

Kennedy and McGovern suggested presidential appointment of a nongovernment commission, headed by a prestige name. Neither senator has offered any legislation, pending some unmistakable indication of Johnson's reaction.

Humphrey has suggested that Congress could act on its own to authorize the appointment of a commission of experts. In such cases, the vice president and the speaker of the House usually are designated to pick the membership.

Everyone concerned recognizes the possible political perils of inquiring into a policy of nonrecognition of Communist China which Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said was frozen into U.S. policy by "the McCarthy holocaust" of a decade ago.

There is some feeling among its supporters that the commission proposal might offer the Johnson administration an opportunity to expand further its recent efforts to establish contacts with Peking while minimizing the political liability for all concerned.

Study Indicates Youths Favoring Totalitarianism

CALGARY, Alta. (AP) — There are distinct signs of growth of a totalitarian mentality in American youth, Dr. C.W. Hobart of the University of Alberta said Saturday.

Hobart, a sociology professor, told an Alberta youth seminar that results of studies on U.S. high school students showed:

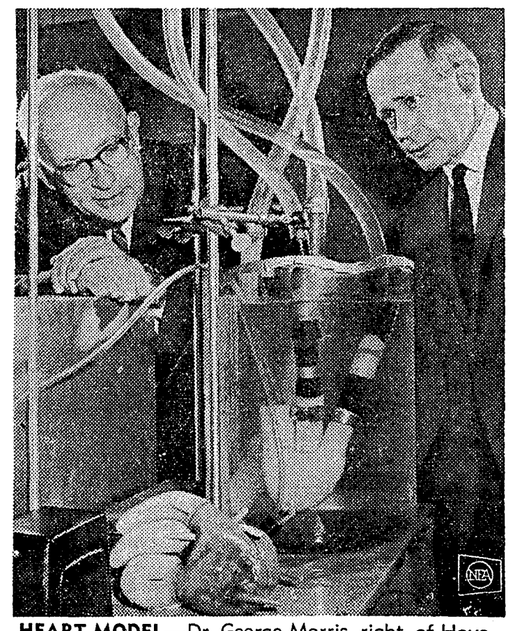

More than 50 per cent of the students surveyed think the large mass of Americans simply are not capable of deciding for themselves what is right and what is wrong.

Sixty per cent favor censorship of books, newspapers and magazines.

Fifty-eight per cent do not object to the use of third-degree methods by the police in extracting confessions.

Almost half are ready to eliminate freedom of the press.

One quarter think police should be free to search people or their homes at will, without a search warrant.

Harry Truman Celebrates 82nd Birthday Today

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — His hair is whiter and thinner, he relies on a cane and he makes fewer public appearances. But Harry Truman, 82 Sunday still has the barbed wit and blunt manner of the man who left the job of president 16 years ago.

Friends by the hundreds will gather Monday — in what has become a regular custom — to toast his birthday. As usual at these birthday luncheons, the President of the United States will telephone his congratulations.

Truman still goes to his office in the Truman Library daily, usually arriving at 7:30 a.m. — before his aides and before the library opens to the public.

He works on his mail — letters still arrive by the thousands each week. He sees important visitors, and occasionally shows someone through the library.

Twice in the last year he was host there to President Johnson. The President signed the medicare bill in the library auditorium as an honor to Truman who first proposed the bill. Johnson came out again when a group of Truman's friends announced the Harry S. Truman Center for Peace, which will be established at Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Mrs. Johnson also visited twice to seek advice for a similar edifice to house Johnson's presidential papers when he leaves the White House.

Truman declined to give birthday interviews this year, saying that reporters will hear enough out of him at the luncheon.

Henry Talge, a Kansas City industrialist, pays the bill for that affair.

Mental Health Unit Visits Here

The Mental Health Care-Avan visited Jacksonville Thursday during its 3,000 mile trip taking Gov. Otto Kerner's Mental Health Week Proclamation to mayors of major Illinois cities. Pictured above with Jack Barwick, left, president of the Morgan County Mental Health Association, are, l-r, Francine Connolly, Mayor Holkenbrink and Marian Slivka. The Misses Slivka and Connolly are field representatives of the Illinois Association for Mental Health, the organization sponsoring the Care-Avan.

The Morgan unit is an affiliate of the state organization. Barwick commented, "Mental illness strikes one out of every 10 in our population, and an increasing number of young people. Hospital records show a marked upswing in the number of children and adolescents in the 10-19 age group. The Mayor stated, "I am pleased that the Mental Health Association Care-Avan has come to Jacksonville, it is a good reminder that the citizens of our community have done a great deal to combat mental illness and a great deal more needs to be done."

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Somehow I have had this nagging thought that Sonny and Cher are putting us on.

In case you're not conversant with the current expressions, "putting on" is a current favorite to express the act of performing a hoax of variable proportions. Could this be true of Sonny and Cher?

Some might consider that the pair's trappings are a bit beyond belief: his Prince Valiant haircut and bobcat-skin jacket; her bell - bottom pajamas of noisy hues. Then there is the music they provide, much of it exciting and cheerful, but with musical inanities that would drive some musicians nutty.

The upshot of all this is that Sonny and Cher are now making a movie, their first, called "Good Times." It concerns young married singing stars named Sonny and Cher who make a movie. There are dream sequences and all that, allowing the pair to engage in Western, jungle and private-eye fantasies.

I visited them during the latter sequence, and found Sonny in a trench-coat outfit rather than his usual animal-skin jacket. Cher was in a blowzy wig and short skirt as his moll.

I asked the burning question: "Are you putting us on:"

"The music?" answered Sonny, who was born Salvatore Bono in Detroit 26 years ago. "There's nothing put-on about it. It's what we believe in."

"The pajama outfits," said Cher (last name: La Piere, 20, from El Centro, Calif.) "they're what I like. It's great to have an outfit that you can wear anywhere, for any occasion. I saw a pair one day and fell in love with them."

"The same with my jacket," said Sonny. "I saw one like it in a movie—'Lust for Life,' only it was lamb skin. I said to myself, 'I want a jacket like that.' Then one day I saw a bobcat vest in a store and I had to have it.

"As for my hair, it's me. I've been wearing it this way since before I got in the business—four years ago. I remember someone showing me a picture of the Beatles in a magazine and saying, "Here are four guys who look like you'."

Put-on or not, Sonny and Cher are big business.

"Last year we made over a million, easy," said Sonny. "This year? I dunno. I lost a lot on this movie. I worked on it for six months, because I wanted to make sure it would be right. And it's going to be."

Sonny is a onetime truck driver, masseur and waiter who landed in the music business as an assistant to record producer Phil Spector. Cher was a high school dropout and drama student, and they met on a double date. Their marriage, on Oct. 27, 1964, would seem to have ruled them out as teen-age favorites.

Magistrate Court Fines

Magistrate Paul Fenstermaker presided over several traffic cases during the past week and assessed fines after defendants entered pleas of guilty. Deputy Circuit Clerk Mabel Brown also handled several tickets on written pleas of guilty and assessed fines according to a schedule approved by the court.

Five dollars court cost was added to each fine.

Cases handled in person by the magistrate: Janice L. Wellhausen Gobbell, 544 Hardin, false information on license application, $10; Ronald R. Lomelino, Route 3, violation of restriction of license, $20, and too fast for conditions, $20; John F. O'Brien, 1652 South East, failure to yield right of way, $20; Stanley Hayes, Woodson, failure to reduce speed, $20; Homer L. Rogan, 831 North Clay, speeding, $21; Betty A. Ginder, Route 1, failure to yield right of way, $20; John Raymond Moriarity, Dubuque, Ia., no Illinois registration, $20; Tommy L. Vincent, Scottville, failure to yield right of way, $30.

Cases handled by the clerk: for speeding, Isaac D. Wright, 633 South Church, $11; Paul H. Lambert, 561 Cherry, $13; Alan D. Reusch, Mt. Prospect, $15; Edward F. Phillips, 899 Henry, $15; John H. Bruning, Cincinnati, Ohio, $10; Clarence E. Mims, Nashville, Tenn., $10; and James F. Osteen, Nashville, Tenn., $10.

Other violations handled by the clerk: Roger L. Hoots, 834 Bibbs, muffler violations, $10; Connie J. Haynes, Route 5, failure to yield at stop sign, $10; Donald W. Opening lead—♣ 9

A letter from Portland, Maine, reads in part: "West opened the nine of clubs against my four-heart contract. He got in with the king of hearts to lead a second club and with the ace of hearts to lead a third club for his partner to ruff. I had to lose a diamond later on and wound up one down. My partner claims that I overbid. Did I?"

The answer to our reader is that he did not overbid at all. He had a full opening bid opposite his partner's club opening, plus a fit in clubs, and was fully entitled to force to game. Furthermore, the game contract was a good one and could have been made against any lead but a club. We think that, instead of fussing at South, North should have congratulated West on a beautiful opening lead.

It is pretty easy to see the effectiveness of a club opening when you look at all the cards, and we believe that the West hand does call for a club opening, but we wonder just how many bridge players would see the strong possibility that repeated club leads would eventually give their partner a ruff.

It is seldom good tactics to lead a suit that your opponents have bid and rebid. In fact, such a lead usually comes close to being a give-away play, but this time West had a lot going for him.

To start with, he could be pretty sure that hearts would divide 5-3-3-2. Then North and South were each likely to hold four clubs. North had opened the suit and South had given a jump raise.

Furthermore, West did not have any other lead with any real promise. He had no reason to open a trump and neither his spade nor diamond holding looked attractive.

Parisian Theme Used For Prom At Chandlerville

CHANDLERVILLE—"A Walk Through Paris," theme of Chandlerville High School's junior - senior prom, held April 29, was carried out in prom decorations which simulated Parisian shops and sidewalk cafes. Green and yellow striped awnings, a mural depicting the Eiffel tower and a small blooming tree completed the illusion.

Miss Loy Janell Armstrong, a senior, reigned as queen of the prom. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Shores. Other members of the court were Georgia Lee Cook, Frances Finn, Alberta Jo Eichenauer, Darlene Logue, Susan Shores, Patricia Standish and Carolyn Stone.

The banquet was served by members of the local Band Boosters organization and music for dancing was provided by the Signets, a Springfield musical group.

A midnight supper was served and the dancers were then guests at a special showing of the movie "Bon Voyage."

One-Fourth of Mankind

(18) Last Days of China

by Don Oakley and John Lane

Under the wide heaven, there is no land, there is none who is not a subject of the emperor.

—Book of Odes

This was China as the 18th century flowed into the 19th:

The Manchus, who had taken the dynastic name of Ch'ing, or "Pure," had ruled for 150 years through the traditional institutions and were considered legitimately Chinese.

Under two model Confucian emperors, K'ang Hsi and his grandson Ch'ien Lung, both of whose reigns lasted 60 years, China reached its greatest territorial extent. Population had soared to some 300 million and for the first time there was serious overcrowding.

That population was overwhelmingly peasant, uneducated and superstitious. Above the peasantry was the gentry class, whose wealth was based on land ownership. The gentry were the guardians of the Confucianist bases of China's society and the source of its officials.

The Chinese had always been collectivistic. The basic unit of society was not the individual but the family, which included the dead as well as the living, with authority proceeding from age and maleness.

Lovers of culture, propounders of great ethical systems and bound by an elaborate etiquette designed to smooth human relationships but which baffled and seemed hypocritical to Westerners, the Chinese were yet capable of outbursts of anarchy and cruelty.

Brilliant inventors in the past, the Chinese had never developed science. They desired not to master nature but to live in harmony with it. Proud of their long history, self-sufficient as an agricultural people, they merely wished to be left alone.

As modern Chinese historian H. T. Lei notes, "Not only were there no new stirrings of the spirit in any sphere, but no need for such stirrings was even faintly felt."

China was crystallized, static and satisfied, and convinced as of old that there was but one Great Society. All who conformed to its ways were Chinese, whatever their race. All who did not were barbarians. The Chinese were totally ignorant of the ideas of international law and equality among nations that had been developed in the West.

This was China on the brink of invasion by an alien culture armed with technology. Unlike previous invasions, this one was to be by sea. Its impact on the Flowery Kingdom, the Central Nation, the Celestial Empire could not have been more profound had it come from another planet.

Franklin Crash Damages 2 Cars

One vehicle was heavily damaged as a result of a two-car accident at the intersection of Main and Prairie streets in Franklin about six o'clock Friday evening.

According to accident reports filed by state police, a car operated by Carl B. Leak, 17, of Franklin, struck a second driven by Danny R. Northrop, 27, also of Franklin.

The Leak vehicle was towed to a Jacksonville garage.

Two vehicles sustained minor damage about 4:30 p.m. in Jacksonville at the intersection of North Main and West Douglas.

City police reported that a pick-up truck, driven by Holland E. Evans of 841 West Morton, was preparing to turn left, when it was struck by a southbound car driven by John D. Meyer of route five, Springfield.

Two vehicles were heavily damaged in an accident near the corner of West Morton and Westgate, shortly after 2:30 this afternoon.

Investigating city police said a car driven by Ola M. Nipper of Meredosia was eastbound, preparing to make a left turn, when it was struck from the rear by a pick-up truck, operated by Homer H. Massey, 1132 South Main.

There were no injuries, but both vehicles had to be towed from the scene.

About an hour earlier, two cars collided in the intersection of North Prairie and West Court streets. Officers said a car driven by Eddy J. Daniels, 779 East College, was westbound, making a right turn, when it collided with an auto driven by Rayma Goings, route two, Murrayville. The Goings car was headed south.

Both autos were driven away.

Energy consumption in the United States is expected to go up 300 per cent during the next few centuries as the nation's population climbs to about 500 million. As forecast by a major oil company, Texaco, exploitation of present energy sources will be greatly expanded, but there still will be a gap between conventional supply and total demand. This could most effectively be filled by direct tapping of the sun's power, ultimate source of all energy on earth, but economical means must first be developed. Most promising may be the collection of solar energy in space with satellites and transmission to earth in concentrated beams. A year's total U.S. energy consumption at present could be collected by a single satellite 24 miles in diameter.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—An hour-long rally at the close of the stock market Friday halted the steepest market plunge in four years and cut some earlier losses.

The sharp upswing trimmed the week's losses to 30.85 for a final Dow-Jones industrial reading of 902.83 at the close of the week.

In all, it was the worst week on the market since the week before the Black Monday crash of May 28, 1962. To find another week as bad it is necessary to go back to the stock market crash of 1929.

But there is a critical difference between those two crashes. The 1929 crash ushered in the depression. In 1962 the worst was over within a month and in a year's time all the losses were recovered and the market was reaching new highs.

"I may end up with egg on my face," said Sidney B. Lurie of Josephthal & Co.. "but I feel we are building up to a buying opportunity—that we are not in the midst of a collapse that resembles 1962. It takes time for a storm to blow itself out."

Another analyst, Robert H. Stovall of E.F. Hutton & Co., said, "The market has been accident-prone all year. My forecast Jan. 1 was that we would have not one, but two or three 'crashettes'."

The cause of the late rally Friday was a surprise announcement that General Motors would resume normal operations at its assembly plants on Monday.

A GM production cutback notice Thursday morning — coupled with earlier ominous statements by two federal economics officials—had sent the market plunging.

The market took its biggest plunge Thursday after Gardner Ackley, President Johnson's chief economic adviser, questioned whether a further rise in profits is in the national interest, according to analysts.

The analysts also agreed that some blame for the drop belonged to William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Martin proposed a "simple, clean - cut, across the board increase in taxes."

The so-called glamor stocks—color television, electronics, aerospace and airlines — were hardest hit. At the week's end Radio Corp. of America was off 7½, Texas Gulf Sulphur 11⅞, Eastern Airlines 12⅞, Commercial Solvents 8⅝ and Raytheon 5¼.

A volume of 48,021,680 shares piled up compared to 38.3 million the previous week. It was the largest since the record weekly turnover of 53.5 million in the week ended April 16.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The butcher hog market maintained a steadily and sharply higher price trend last week and closed at its highest peak in six weeks.

On Friday, best offerings brought $25.50 a hundredweight, compared with a top of $23.50 on Monday and a week ago. The supply of 25,500 head for the period was down 1,500 from a week ago, with the peak price moving up to 50 cents every day except one after Monday. On Wednesday the gain amounted to 25 cents.

The over-all advance of $2-2.50 for the week was the sharpest in over nine years and the first advance in six weeks. The average price was estimated at $22.45, compared with $21.70 a week ago and $19.68 a year ago.

In the cattle market, slaughter steers were 50 to 75 cents higher for the week, largely because of somewhat reduced offerings. Cattle recipts of 25,100 head compared with 26,800 a week ago.

Prime slaughter steers topped at $29.75 on three days and the average cost of all grades was estimated at $27.10, up from $26.87 a week ago.

Prices were steady for the small supply of spring and wooled slaughter lambs.

John Pfander, on whose farm the plane crashed, said he was mowing his lawn when "suddenly I heard a boom. I looked up and saw the plane spinning down. When it hit the ground, it burst into flames.

"I went to the telephone right away. I told them I had just come from the wreckage and there was nothing much left but framework. Everything was scattered all over. . ."

The plane was piloted by Jim Kiesling, 33, Willow Grove, Pa., a veteran pilot and father of five children. The surviving jumper was Walker D. McCraw, 28, a Navy man attached to the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N.J., and designated as the jumpmaster on this flight, first of a score scheduled for the meet which included such events as delayed jumps.

In the plane were three fellow Navy jumpers and two civilian jumpers. The Navy men were identified as Alva McBride, 23, Thomas L. Botdorf, 21, and Ronald L. West, 20, all of Lakehurst. The two civilians were Scott Benner, 17, Boyertown, Pa., and Howard Miller, 20, Havertown, Pa.

Botdorf was identified as the jumper who apparently attempted to get out after McGraw, who as the jumpmaster was sitting at the door. McCraw, a veteran of 470 jumps, rode to the hospital in the ambulance which carried Botdorf's body, then returned to the airport.

Account Given

He told Harry Crane, state police investigator:

"The plane was at about 1,000 feet when the left wing dipped at a 90 degree angle. The pilot straightened out the plane, looked back and nodded 'Everything under control.'

"A split second later the wing dipped again, and I told everyone to follow me out.

"When I left the plane it was at about 500 feet altitude, and I estimate the plane dropped to within 100 feet of the ground when Botdorf left."

This would normally have been insufficient altitude for a chute to function properly.

It was a split second later that the plane crashed into the ground, exploded and caught fire. The others never had a chance, trapped in the flaming cabin.

McCraw told Crane and state trooper Al Kweeder that he did not hear any change in the engine's power.

Derby Title To Kauai King

Sets All The Pace For Win

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kauai King, the fleet son of Native Dancer, set all the pace and won the 92nd running of the $163,000 Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs Saturday.

Under a well judged ride of Don Brumfield, Kauai King, owned by Michael Ford of Omaha, Neb., reeled off the 1¼ miles in 2:02 flat before a crowd announced by the Churchill Downs management in excess of 100,000.

Advocator, owned by Mrs. Ada L. Rice of Chicago, who won in 1965 with Lucky Debonair, was a surprise second, edging Blue Skyer, a last-minute entry carrying the hopes of M.J. Padgett and Hugh Grant.

Fourth in the field of 15 3-year-olds was the Wheatley Stables' Stupendous.

Kauai King, going into the race with a record of six victories and one second in eight starts this year, earned $120,500 to boost his bankroll for the year to $240,027.

Backed by a victory in the recent Governor's Gold Cup at Bowie, the dark brown colt, purchased by Ford for $42,000 as a yearling, never left the issue in doubt from the time the field broke out of the starting gate.

Halts Challengers

He was driving all the way through the stretch and tossed back the challenges of Advocator, ridden by Johnny Sellers, and the fast closing Blue Skyer, handled by Earlie Fires.

Kauai King

The winner hit the finish line three-quarters of a length in front of Advocator, but it took a photo to determine runner-up honors.

Back of the first four horses, in order, came Abe's Hope, Rehabilitate, Amberoid, Fleet Shoe, Exhibitionist, Sky Guy, Williamston Kid, Quinta, Tragniew, Beau Sub and Dominar.

Kauai King ran the first quarter in 22 4-5 as he opened up a two-length lead and covered the first half-mile in 46 1-5 as he swung past the half-mile post with a two-length margin.

His time for six furlongs was 1:10 3-5.

Kauai King paid $6.80, $4.29 and $3.60. Advocator returned $13 and $8.60. Blue Skyer, for whom his owners paid $50,000 only a few months ago, returned $5.40 to show.

Happy Jockey

"I'm the happiest human living," a hard breathing Brumfield said as he was led to the presentation stand.

"He ran good all the way," the winning jockey added. "I slowed him up a bit on the back side but at the middle of the turn, when another horse challenged, I let him go."

Ford, the owner, said, "My mouth is so dry I'm spitting cotton. I can't tell you how happy I am today."

Kauai King, the first Maryland-bred to win the Derby, was brought up to the race in superb condition by Henry Forrest, who took over the colt last year after Loyd Gentry, now trainer of the sidelined Graustark, had predicted great things for the offspring of Native Dancer.

Ahead All The Way

Never noted for his early speed, Kauai King broke from the gate on top, out-sprinted Quita to the first turn, was rated easily down the backstretch by Brumfield, lost some of his lead as the field rounded the final turn, then had enough left to best every challenge.

The real surprise of the race was Advocator. His trainer, Clyde Troutt, had said he would be happy with the smallest part of the purse. Mrs. Rice's colt had showed promise last season but was never able to come through with a big one.

Saturday, however, he made a big stretch run to pick up second money of $25,000. Blue Skyer, who had won the Louisiana Derby, earned $12,500 for third. Stupendous won $5,000 for fourth for Mrs. H.D. Phipps' Wheatley Stable.

Winchester, Routt Split Two Games

Winchester and Routt split a pair of games, Saturday afternoon at Nichols Park, with Routt taking the opener 15-8 and the visitors coming back to take the nightcap, 10-6. The wild twinbill had 18 errors and numerous walks given up by both sides.

Routt scored almost at will in the opener, having innings of two, three, six, two and two before being shutout in the sixth. Mike Fitzpatrick and Ken McGinnis each had three safeties for the winners, who gathered 11 hits off three Winchester hurlers.

Winchester got to Routt starter Jim Proffitt for five runs in a wild first inning and led all the way in the second game. Routt closed the gap to 8-6 with four in the fifth, but two more in the Wildcats' seventh settled the issue. Winchester pounded out nine hits in the victory.

Routt is now 1-5 on the season. Winchester holds a 2-9 slate.

Roberts Flashes To :09.3 Hundred At Quantico

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Olympian Ed Roberts flashed to a 9.3 meet record in the 100, anchored a record-breaking North Carolina College effort in the 440 relay while Kentucky State's speedsters set two other marks Saturday in the Quantico relays.

Others who got into the act as records fell on a sunny day with temperatures in the mid-80s included hurdler Pat Pomphrey of Tennessee, William Skinner of the Delaware Track and Field club and Mike Manley of the Quantico Marines.

Roberts, who finished third in the 1964 Olympics in the 200-meters running for Trinidad, overcame a two-yard deficit as he led the Eagles' quartet that also included Percy Crisp, Ed Watson and Charles Copeland to a 41.1 second 440 relay. That wiped out the 41.3 mark they set in Friday's trials.

Earlier, Roberts streaked down the fast track to retain his 100-yard dash championship by one yard over John Moon of the Seth Weekly Track Club, one of three runners who shared the old mark of 9.4.

But his teammates let him down in the 880-yard relay and he couldn't make up a huge deficit as Kentucky State sped to a record 1:24.3 that erased the 1:24.5 mark North Carolina College set in 1965.

The Kentucky State foursome was made up of Marshall Glover, Jim Kemp, Bobby Bailey and Clarence Ray — the same quartet which earlier had set a 3:21.1 record in the sprint medley relay.

A 1:49.4 half-mile anchor leg by Kemp led Kentucky State to the sprint medley title, wiping out the record of 3:21.8 set last year by the Quantico Marines.

Equals Hurdles Mark

In the 120-yard high hurdles, Pomphrey equaled the best time he had ever run, 13.7, for a narrow victory over Leon Coleman of Winston-Salem and Villanova freshman Irvin Hall, both of whom did 13.8. Coleman had set a 440-yard intermediate hurdles mark of 51.2 Friday.

Manley, who anchored the Marines to a four-mile relay record Friday, was another repeater from the Penn Relays, setting a record of 8:52.6 in the 3,000-meter steeplechase. He was more than 20 seconds under the previous record set by Vic Zwolak of Villanova and the Quantico Marines.

Skinner threw the javelin 248 feet for another mark, adding slightly over three feet to the record set by Phil Conley.

Villanova took the major collegiate two-mile relay on the strength of third and fourth legs by Ian Hamilton and Patrick. The Wildcats were clocked in 7:28.2 and had a 10-yard lead over Fordham at the end.

George Germann, the former Seton Hall star now running from South Orange, N.J., won the Butler Memorial in 4:06.1, the fastest time of his career.

Clan 8th In Beloit Relay Meet

BELOIT, Wisc.—MacMurray's track team finished eighth in the tough, 20-team Beloit Relays, here Saturday. Hillsdale, Michigan, made a runaway of the meet with 78 points.

Following Hillsdale were North Central 42, Grinnell 33, Lake Forest 29, Loras, Iowa, 28, Wheaton and Monmouth 27 and MacMurray 19.

The only individual place winners for the Highlanders were Roger Miersch, a third in the javelin, and Rich Pincuspy, a sixth in the 100 yard dash. Miersch threw the javelin 175 feet, best ever for him, while Pincuspy legged the 100 in :10.2, behind a winning time of :09.8.

The relay team of Bob Leitze, Pincuspy, Art Hammon and Ron Orr took second in :43.8, one tenth off the Mac school record. The same four runners took fourth in the 880 relay, in 1:32.5.

The distance medley outfit of Mark Matranga, Jim McGinnis, Jim Webber and Denny Mueller broke a school record with a time of 10:50.4, good for fifth place. The mile relay team of Ray Davis, Matranga, Hammon and Orr finished 5th with a time of 3:33.5.

Pittsfield finished second in the 400 yard shuttle relay, while Patterson and Ewing of Rushville finished 1-2 in the high jump. Jim Six of Triopia took second in the discus.

Turner point-getters in the lightweight class were; Frank Lawrence, first in the 120 yard high hurdles, with an outstanding time of :15.85, and a second in the broad jump and Steve Coleman, second in the pole vault. Chris Nergenah of Triopia came in second in the hurdles, while Rushville's 440 yard relay of Koch, Park, Green and Boyd came in first.

Browne's Homer Carries Cubs Past Mets, 3-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Byron Browne belted a three-run homer in the sixth inning as the Chicago Cubs came from behind and edged the New York Mets 3-2 Saturday, snapping a four-game losing streak.

The Cubs overcame a 2-0 deficit and held off New York behind the tight pitching of Ernie Broglio, who scattered six hits for his first victory in three decisions.

Browne, the Cubs' rookie center fielder, smashed his homer off left-hander Tug McGraw after a single by Billy Williams and a walk to Ron Santo in the sixth.

Rule Puts Way Into Golf Lead

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Jack Rule Jr. collected three consecutive back nine birdies with a croquet-mallet-type putter Saturday to post a three-under-par 68 for the first round lead in the $117,000 Champions International Golf Tournament.

All three putts were for 15 feet and the 35-33—68 left the 27-year-old Iowa native one stroke ahead of Harold Henning, a young South African, Gordon Jones, a former Marine jet pilot, and Earl Stewart, a Dallas, Tex., veteran.

Six days of rain had delayed the first round 48 hours and play moved very slowly as water still covered hundreds of spots on the 7,118-yard, par 36-35—71 Cypress Course of the Champions Golf Club.

It was the first PGA test of the course built in 1957 by Jimmy Demaret and Jack Burke Jr. and Rule admitted he may have had a bit of an advantage over many of the pros who had seen the course only the last few days.

"I played it many times while attending the University of Houston about 18 months and have played it a number of times since then," Rule said.

Rule, winner of the St. Paul Open in 1963 and the Oklahoma City open last year, carries two putters but uses the conventional style only for long distances.

Doug Sanders, a pre-tournament favorite along with Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, headed an eight-way tie at 70, the only others to break par.

Both Nicklaus and Palmer ran into early difficulties. Palmer took a triple bogey six on the 191-yard eighth hole and had to settle for a 39-34—73. Nicklaus bogeyed the first two holes on both the front and back nine and came in with a 36-38—74.

'BING' MILLER DIES AFTER CRASH

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Edmund J. (Bing) Miller, 71, one-time outfield star for the Philadelphia Athletics, died Saturday about six hours after he was injured in an auto crash. A hospital spokesman said death may have been due to a heart attack.

Miller, who had a .312 lifetime batting average, played right field on the A's 1929-30-31 American League championship teams and was a member of two World Series championship teams.

The veteran of 16 years in the major leagues was injured while returning to his Wynnewood, Pa., home after attending the Philadelphia Phillies-Pittsburgh Pirates game at Connie Mack Stadium Friday night.

Miller struck the windshield when the car in which he was riding collided headon with another.

Joseph H. Greene, 69, of Philadelphia, driver of the car in which Miller was riding, was hospitalized along with a passenger in the other car.

Miller was born in Vinton, Iowa, and played 12 years with the A's beginning in 1922.

He played in 1,821 major league games. His best season was 1924 when he hit .342.

Tribe's 6-Run 9th Tips Orioles, 6-3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Duke Sims' three-run homer off Moe Drabowsky capped a six-run ninth inning rally that gave the Cleveland Indians a 6-3 victory over Baltimore Saturday.

The Indians, blanked on four hits until the ninth, exploded against three Baltimore relievers and gained their 15th victory in 17 games this season.

Vic Davalillo led off the ninth with a triple off rookie Eddie Watt. One out later Chuck Hinton singled him home and Stu Miller replaced Watt on the mound.

The Orioles' relief ace was clipped for singles by Rocky Colavito and Fred Whitfield, with the second run scoring on Whitfield's hit.

Drabowsky came on and fanned Pedro Gonzalez for the second out, but Leon Wagner lashed a pinch-hit single, tying the game 3-3, and Sims unloaded his third homer into the right field bull pen.

Pirate Errors Allow Phillies To Score 7-3 Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies took advantage of two throwing errors by Robert Clemente and two passed balls by Jesse Gonder and defeated Pittsburgh 7-3 Saturday.

Jim Bunning scattered nine hits, one of them Manny Mota's two-run homer in the Pittsburgh fifth inning.

Clemente's first error in the seventh inning came after he caught Dick Groat's foul fly. After the catch he overthrew home, allowing Bunning and Johnny Briggs to score.

Bill White, who had singled, then scored the third run of the inning after Johnny Callison singled into right center and Clemente again threw wildly to home.

The Phillies scored two runs in the third with the help of Gonder's passed balls.

Coleman Sets Mark At Delavan Meet

DELAVEN — Ron Coleman high jumped 6' 3¾" for a new school and meet record as Jacksonville finished a strong fifth in the strong, 33-team Delavan Track Carnival, here Saturday.

Chillicothe won the meet with 44 points, followed in order by Morton 30½, Quincy 28½, Springfield Feitshans 26 5/6 and Jacksonville 22 ⅓. Other scores in the meet were Bloomington 18, Spalding 13, Lanphier 12, Griffin 10, San Jose 10, Normal University 5, Flanagan 3, Tremont 3, Dee-Mack 2½, Delavan 1 and Clinton ⅓. Seventeen other schools did not score in the 22nd annual meet in which 397 athletes participated.

Coleman and the 880 yard varsity relay team garnered the only firsts for the Crimsons in the meet, who have never finished below fifth in their 14 years in the meet.

Coleman broke the meet record of 6' 1¼", set 19 years ago by Patterson of Rushville. This also breaks Coleman's own school record of 6' 2½". Coleman did not miss up to and including the record jump, but just grazed the bar on three tries at 6' 4¾".

The winning relay team of Jim Bruner, Dennis Portee, Abe Brown and Frank Wildhagen legged the half mile in 1:36.3, beating out Quincy by five tenths of a second.

The frosh-soph medley relay team of Bruner, Ben Richardson, Rod Simonds and Gary Stanberry finished second behind Feitshans, with a time of 1:44.0.

Steve Simonds took third and Mike Matijevich fifth in the shot put, with tosses of 50' 4" and 48' 11" respectively.

The mile relay outfit of Larry Nortrup, Abe Brown, Frank Wildhagen and Larry Angelo finished fourth, with a time of 3:41.

Bruner won his preliminary heat in the 100 yard dash in :10.4, but got off to a bad start in the semifinals and was eliminated. Steve Tavender was leading his heat of the low hurdles but hit the next to last hurdle and took a bad fall.

Coble Sparkles In 1-0 JHS Win

QUINCY — Rich Coble fired a near-perfect one-hitter, here Saturday night, and drove in the only run of the game as Jacksonville nipped Quincy Christian Brothers, 1-0.

Coble had faced a minimum 20 batters with two out in the seventh until Christian Brothers' Steve Drawe laced a triple down the left field line, a ball that was fair by only inches. The only other baserunner for CBQ came via an error by JHS's Mike Tendick in the second, but catcher Dan Brooks threw the runner out trying to steal second.

Coble, a junior right hander who is now 5-0 and 12-1 in his high school career, fanned 11 batters in his stint.

Jacksonville got the only run it needed in the opening frame. Tendick walked and stole second before Coble, who got two of JHS's five hits, stroked a long triple that just missed clearing the center field wall 400 feet away at 'Q' Stadium. The Crimsons got two men on in the fifth when Ed Wingler, who had two singles, and Duane Hess singled, but failed to score.

The Crimsons are now 10-5 on the season. Christian Brothers, coached by former Routt athlete Fred Curtis, suffered its fourth loss in 16 games.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Tommy Smith of San Jose State bettered the world records in the 220-yard dash on a straightaway and the 200-meter dash by a full one-half second Saturday, recording the time of 19.5 over each distance.

The marks came in a meet among San Jose State, the Athens Track Club and the Santa Clara Youth Village.

Timers clocked Smith in 19.5, 19.5, 19.6 for 220 yards and 19.4, 19.5, 19.6 for 220 meters. Two tapes were strung along the track.

Old records were 20 flat for 220 yards by Dave Sime and Frank Budd and 20 in the 200 meters by Smith, Sime and Budd.

Twins Continue Mastery Over Bosox, Win 6-4

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota continued its mastery over Boston Saturday, pushing across three runs in the fifth inning to take charge and then holding off the Red Sox 6-4 behind Johnny Klippstein's tight relief pitching.

The victory was Minnesota's 17th in a row over Boston dating back to May 27, 1965. It also was the Twins' 17th straight over Red Sox here since May 31, 1964.

Camilo Pascual took a five-hitter and 6-1 lead into the eighth inning but three straight singles produced one run and knocked him out. Jim Merritt came on to give up another run-scoring single and an infield hit that loaded the bases.

That brought on Klippstein, who let in a third run on a sacrifice fly before striking out two batters to halt the rally.

Martin's Single Lifts White Sox To 1-0 Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — J. C. Martin's third straight single produced a run in the sixth inning, enabling the Chicago White Sox to snap a four-game losing streak with a 1-0 victory over Detroit Saturday.

Martin's blow, scoring Danny Cater from third, broke up a scoreless duel between Chicago's Tommy John and Detroit's Joe Sparma.

The Sox run in the sixth came when Cater slammed a one-out single, stole second, reached third on an infield out and scored on Martin's smash off second baseman Jerry Lumpe's glove into right field for a single.

Green With Envy

For being the most coveted player on the Kansas City roster, Dick Green was cut $2,000 in salary this year. "It was either take what they offered," shrugged the young second baseman, "or not report to spring training on time. But wait'll I put the good year together. They'll give me what I want or they'll have to come find me." . . .

And so life is rolly for a player who has spent his entire baseball life in the Kansas City organization. It's a tossup whether Green or Bert Campaneris is the best ballplayer on the club. Manager Alvin Dark won't split them out. Johnny Keane of the Yankees leans to Campaneris. In trade talk everybody wants Green. . . .

"The trouble with playing on a last-place club," says Green, "is concentrating on baseball. Especially hitting. I know it affected me, and that's why I dropped off last year (to .232). Sure, as an individual, you want to do well, but you're just one and the rest of them (he waved around the field at the other As), they don't care if they lose. They make too many errors. They expect to." . . .

The one place Green says he doesn't have any trouble pumping himself up to play is Yankee Stadium. "When I was a kid in Rapid City, S.D.," he says, "that's all I dreamed about — playing for the Yankees." So why's he with Kansas City? "They're the only team that showed any interest in me." . . .

Campaneris, who forms the double-play combination with Green for the Athletics, actually started out as a catcher in his native Cuba and came into organized baseball with Daytona Beach in 1962 as a receiver. While there, however, he pulled his first stint at playing all nine innings at nine different positions in one ball game, a feat which he repeated last year in Kansas City at owner Charley Finley's urging. Bert's even an accomplished pitcher, having twirled 13 innings in the minors. He throws a slider, curve and change-up. Spitter? "I no understand." . . .

In fact, having a conversation with the 22-year-old expatriate is a little like discussing the spitter with Whitey Ford. You're not quite sure you're getting through. His cousin is Jose Cardenal, the swift outfielder of the California Angels, and they're probably the two fastest men in the American League. When they're not playing winter ball in Venezuela, they share the same apartment in El Paso, Tex. Why El Paso? "Lot of people speak Spanish there." . . .

You'd think that with Campaneris at short and Green at second, the As would have the smoothest play around the middle bag, but actually they haven't really adjusted to each other yet. . . .

Between you'n'me, Green complains, "We have no communication. Because we have so many other Spanish-speaking players on the club, he never gets to practice English. I wave at him with my hands. And that's about it." . . .

Utility man Felix Mantilla was activated Friday night and appeared as a pinch-hitter in the Houston-Atlanta game.

MacMurray Drops Two By 10-0 And 2-1

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa — A strong Iowa Westleyan baseball team swept both ends of a doubleheader from MacMurray, here Saturday afternoon, romping to a 10-0 shutout in the opener and squeezing to a 2-1 triumph in the nightcap.

The winners ruined a stout pitching performance by Mac's Terry Berwanger in the second tilt. Berwanger went the distance, giving up only five singles while fanning one and giving up one walk.

John Jusits led off the second game with a home run, the only tally the Highlanders got all afternoon. After that the eventual losers led until the sixth when Wesleyan pushed across a pair of deciding runs.

MacMurray loaded the bases in the top of the seventh in the nightcap when Rich Nichols reached on an error, Mike Bertollette singled and Berwanger bunted for a single to fill the bags. Jusits fanned and Fred Lewis hit into a fielder's choice to end the threat.

The Highlanders were never in the first game after the hosts reached starter Dave Berst for six runs in their half of the opening frame. The losers managed only singles by Bob Gay and Ted Lippert.

MacMurray is now 4-11 on the campaign, while Iowa Wesleyan increased its mark to 9-2.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The San Francisco Giants erupted for 13 runs in the third inning, with a grand-slam home run by Orlando Cepeda and a two-run homer by Jim Hart leading the rally and won their seventh straight, 15-2 over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

The Giants blasted 11 hits off three Cardinal pitchers in the inning as Juan Marichal won his sixth game without a loss.

The 13 runs, a record for the third inning, fell short of the modern National League single inning record of 15 set by the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1952 and the modern major league record of 17 set a year later by Boston.

The Giants sent 16 men to bat in the third. Willie Mays brought in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a double and Hal Lanier and Marichal each had two hits in the inning.

The 30-minute barrage finally ended when Cepeda popped to Charley Smith for the third out.

HOUSTON (AP) — Larry Dierker and Claude Raymond combined for a five-hitter as the Houston Astros blanked the Atlanta Braves 3-0 Saturday night.

The Astros' other run came in the fourth when John Bateman reached second on Woody Woodward's throwing error and came around when Dierker delivered a two-out single to right.

Clemente Sorry He Struck Fan

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Roberto Clemente, Pittsburgh outfielder, expressed regret Saturday that a 19-year-old baseball fan was injured in a brief scuffle outside Connie Mack Stadium Friday night.

Clemente said the incident resulted from a misunderstanding and he did not realize how badly the fan, Bernard Heller, was hurt until police contacted him early Saturday.

Heller was treated for some loose teeth and an injured jaw at a hospital shortly after the Phillies beat Pittsburgh 8-7 in 11 innings.

"I didn't mean any harm. Now, I'm very sorry," said the player.

Clemente said that after the game, he was making his way through a crowd of fans around the team bus, signing autographs as he went.

Just before he boarded the bus, he explained, if felt like someone pushed or punched him in the shoulder and spun him partly around.

"I saw someone coming at me with hands up, like he was going to hit me, so I just reached up and pushed him away. I really thought someone was coming to attack. I wouldn't hit anyone without provocation," Clemente added.

Clemente was taken to the 39th District Police Headquarters early Saturday and was questioned but was not charged.

Houk Takes Over

Manager Keane Fired By Yanks

ANAHEIM (AP) — Johnny Keane was fired as manager of the 10th place New York Yankees Saturday night, and General Manager Ralph Houk took over direction of the club.

Houk, a cigar-chomping former Army major who had led the Yanks to three straight pennants before moving upstairs, made the announcement in the hotel suite Saturday night just before the Yanks took the field against the California Angels.

The decision was made, Houk said, by Yankee President Dan Topping. Houk, who managed the club against California, paced nervously back and forth as he made the announcement.

JOHNNY KEANE

Keane, Houk said, was with the players on the bus at the time of the announcement. Keane had been told earlier but wanted to talk with the players.

Houk said he hated to fire Keane.

"I don't want to call him a failure, but something had to be done," Houk said. "Keane is my man. I don't believed he failed."

Also out is first base Coach Vern Benson.

Four-Year Contract

Houk takes over with a four-year contract at an increase from his present $50,000 as general manager. The duties of general manager will be taken over by Dan Topping Jr., a vice president of the club.

The move had been rumored —and vehemently denied by the club—for two days before it was announced.

"I have the Yankees at heart and I had no alternative but to do it (accept Topping's order to go back to managing)," Houk said.

Keane, who took over the Yanks a year ago, has had nothing but trouble. Plagued by injuries, the perennial champs slipped to sixth place in 1965 and have been in and out of last place all this season.

Asked if he thought he could bring order ou. of the Yankee demise, Houk replied:

"Yes, I do."

He then listed a new batting order for the Yanks, as follows: Roy White, Bobby Richardson, Mickey Mantle, Joe Pepitone, Tom Tresh, Roger Maris, Clete Boyer, and Elston Howard.

Came After World Title

Keane came to the Yankees in a stunning sequence of events immediately after the 1964 World Series in which his St. Louis Cardinals beat the Yankees.

The Cardinals won the seventh game of the Series on Oct. 15. The next day Keane resigned as manager of the Cardinals, ending a 35-year tenure in the St. Louis organization, and the Yankees fired Yogi Berra, who had won an American League pennant in his first year as field boss.

On Oct. 20 the 53-year-old Irishman was introduced at a mammoth news conference in New York as the Yankees pilot and signed a one-year contract for a reported $45,000. "This is a great day for the Yankees," Houk said at the time. "We hope he will be with us for a long time to come."

Keane was the 18th Yankee manager and the third — after Houk and Berra — since 1960, when Casey Stengel was dismissed after New York's Series loss to Pittsburgh.

Rogers Cemetery Gets Tax Exempt Status

The United States Treasury Department announced recently that the Rogers Cemetery Foundation of Waverly has achieved tax exempt status. Now all gifts to the foundation are tax exempt, the same as those to other community and church organizations.

The directors of the foundation have received a proposal that if the sum of $2,000 is raised within two years, an extra $2,000 will be placed in the foundation for the upkeep of the cemetery. The funds are kept in trust and under supervision of the board of directors and the State of Illinois.

The annual business meeting of Rogers Cemetery Foundation will be held May 15 at 2:30 p.m. at Waverly Christian Church.

Memorial Day services in Waverly will open at 11 o'clock at East cemetery, proceeding immediately to Rogers cemetery.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution to the Rogers Cemetery Foundation may send the money to Wemple State Bank at Waverly, Illinois or to the Secretary - Treasurer, Mrs. Guy W. Martin, Waverly, Illinois 62692.

About 1830 John C. Caldwell set aside a plot of ground on his farm southwest of Waverly as a burial place for the settlement in that area. The earliest known burial was of David Watkins, who died Nov. 7, 1831. The last known burial was of William Campbell in 1940. The burial plot was given the name of Rogers Cemetery in honor of Mrs. John C. Caldwell's parents, Rev. and Mrs. William Rogers.

For many years this was a beautiful burial place and then it was neglected and completely overgrown in brush, briars, vines and trees. In April of 1963 a restoration project was started and on June 21, 1963 a Certificate of Incorporation was issued by the State of Illinois to the Rogers Cemetery Foundation.

All brush, briars etc. have been removed, the cemetery fenced, the road rebult, all monument inscriptions read and recorded, monuments set up, a trust fund and a general fund established.

Veterans of three wars are buried there — Revolutionary, Mexican and Civil War. Also three pioneer ministers, Rev. William Rogers, a Baptist minister; Rev. Austin Sims, a Disciples of Christ minister, and Rev. Newton Cloud, a Methodist minister.

Also buried at Rogers Cemetery are two Illinois state legislators, Rev. Newton Cloud, who was chosen speaker of the house in 1846; and the Hon. Isaiah Turney, a representative in the state legislature 1861-62.

The first postmaster at Waverly, William Deatherage, is also buried there.

PATIENT LEAPS OVER RAILING AT HOSPITAL

Coroner John B. Martin identified the apparent suicide victim as Isaac Glass of Taylorville who had been a patient at the hospital for the past eight years. The incident happened shortly before 11 a.m. Saturday.

Martin said medical authorities at the hospital stated that Glass had not exhibited suicidal tendencies previously and was under treatment in an open ward on the third floor.

Death was due to a fractured skull and neck according to the coroner. Glass was rushed to the hospital ward at the institution following the fall but was dead on arrival.

Volunteers Begin Sandy Beach Work Project Saturday

Although greeted by rain showers in the morning, spirits were brightened as the weather man smiled on the future beach area on the north shore of Lake Jacksonville.

"Two-thirds of the clearing has been accomplished in just one day," Alderman Homer Baptist said Saturday night, "but we still have a big project ahead."

Baptist, along with his fellow seventh ward alderman, Carl Bourn, have spearheaded the development of Lake Jacksonville as a public recreation area.

Both aldermen placed their political hats on the shelf long ago and have worked toward the development of plans for Lake Jacksonville like "two peas in the same pod."

No Tax Funds

Jacksonville is currently without tax funds to spend toward the development of the lake as a recreational area. Project Sandy Beach is one of the more ambitious parts of the overall picture and has met with generous public support on the first work day.

Harold Walker accepted the responsibility of supervision of the volunteer workers and will also assist in recruitment of special skills.

Dozers Saturday were donated by Morgan County Highway Department, K. E. Vas Construction Co., and Earl W. Wright.

Water witching and a well digger will open for business on the cleared site starting Wednesday for a water supply.

Bryce Wall, city building inspector, will have a set of working plans available sometime this week for the proposed bathhouse.

Plenty To Do Yet!

There is still no surplus of workers at the lake area. Several volunteers will be on hand this afternoon, although Alderman Baptist said it would not be a scheduled work day because of Mother's Day.

The next regular work day will be Saturday, May 14, and will run through Sunday, May 15, weather permitting.

The largest problem facing the project at the present time is removal of roots and other sticks and debris from the surface of the cleared area. This work can best be done by hand, possibly using a small hand ax where necessary. The tree roots will be piled and later hauled away for burning.

When most of the roots are removed, a motor grader will level the site for the bathhouse and well area.

Baptist said the beach area will be in first class condition before opening ceremonies. Access roads from the boat dock will be surfaced as soon as the heavy equipment has finished work.

Off-duty firemen removed several stumps from the water area Saturday and will tackle the problem to completion as time permits.

The bathhouse will also include a concession stand.

Project Sandy Beach is primarily designed to relieve the pressing problem of lack of supervised swimming facilities. Baptist said the program will not eliminate the need for a pool but should help a lot.

Development of the project will be by donations of money, material, labor and know-how from the community residents. The completed swimming facilities will include life guards, posted areas, supervision and a small fee to maintain the premises.

Baptist said Saturday that an effort would be made to also include the services of a night watchman to make sure the facilities are not vandalized.

Volunteers

Volunteers who signed the register Saturday at Lake Jacksonville: Harold E. Wright, Earl W. Wright, Kenny Allen, Dan Carl, Dean Colwell, Terry DeFrates, Miles Fitzpatrick, Gary L. DeFrates, Calvin Verhoef, Carl Bourn, Homer Baptist, Louis Howell, John Fanning, Don V. Wolfley, Jr., Mickey Walker, Ron Carr, Donald Ranson, Forrest Worrall, Harold J. Walker, Kenny Vasconcellos, Ed White, Lawrence Ballenger, Denny Dobson, Walt Matthews, Bob S. Sullivan, Mike Atkins, William Stewart, Darrell Dean, Ted Matthews, Clyde W. Jones, C. P. Runkel, Rev. Owen Candler, Morris Winn, Joe Bogacz, Warren Massey and C. O. Scott.

Alderman Baptist said there were several others who appeared prior to the rain, but did not have an opportunity to register and that several asked that their names not be used.

Diesel fuel was donated by Jerry Agans of Citgo Bulk Plant and Warren Massey of Phillips 66. Pepsi-Cola was made available for workers throughout the day by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company and doughnuts were furnished by Mel-O-Cream. Alderman Carl Bourn supplied a large quantity of assorted Hostess cakes for the workers.

SCIENCE PROJECTS FROM MEREDOSIA WIN RECOGNITION

The students were accompanied by faculty members James Henderson and Norman Deming.

More than 900 student science projects were displayed in Saturday's exhibition at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall.

Homes And Gardens To Be Visited Saturday, May 14

Page One — Section Two

Four homes and two gardens are included in the Saturday afternoon, May 14th, Home and Garden Tour being sponsored by the MacMurray Alumnae Association of Jacksonville. Directly below is a view of the foyer at the Harris Rowe home, 1152 West State street. Built in 1868 the residence is a fine example of architecture of the period. Remodeled in 1965 with a new kitchen and fireplace area and redecorated dining room in true Williamsburg tradition which has Kittinger reproduction pieces.

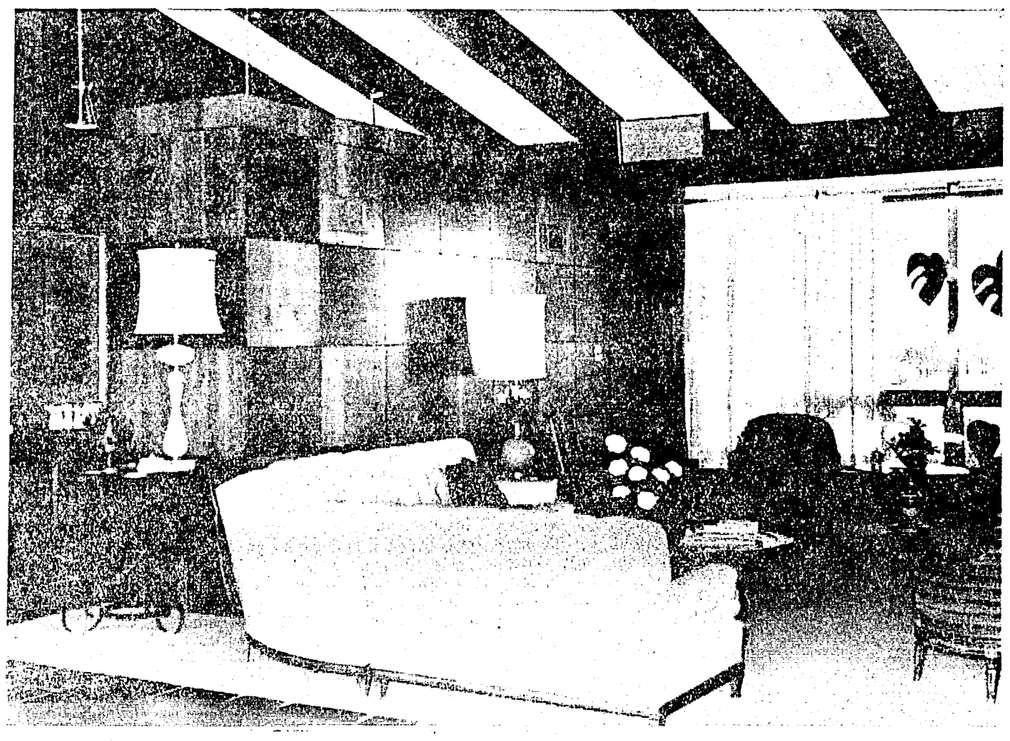

At the lower center is a view of the garden at the Arthur J. French home, 1201 Mound avenue from the Summer House. Other features here are an iron fence from the Old Ayers Bank and a sleigh built in 1839 by an ancestor who settled Joy Prairie.

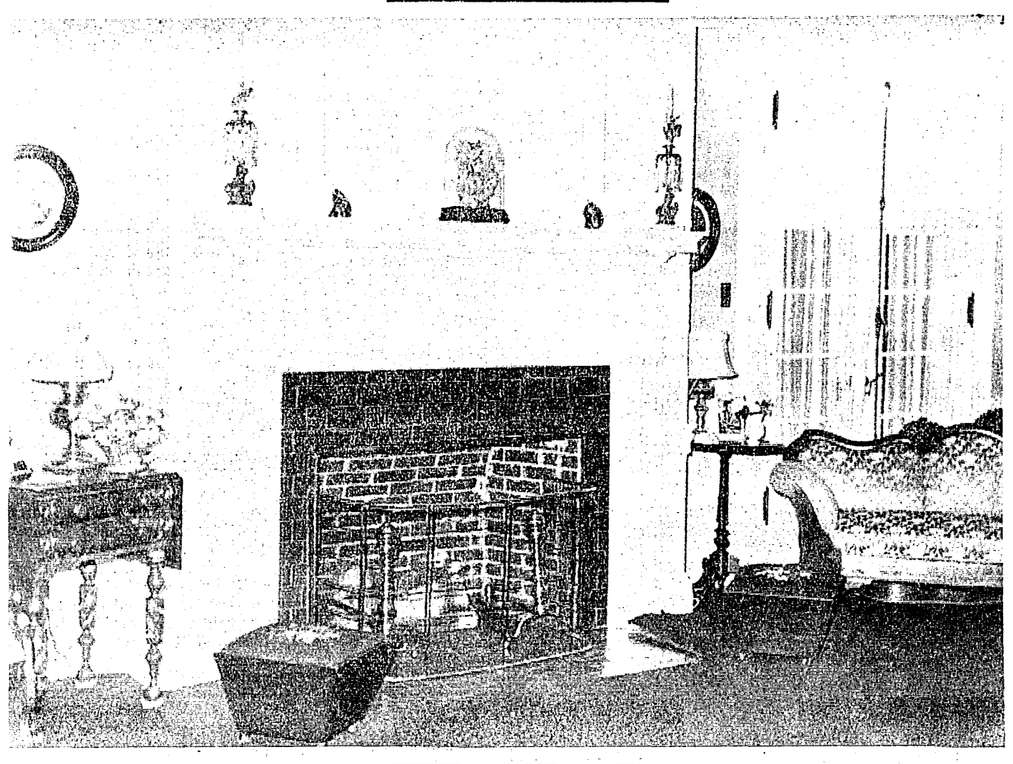

At top left is a view in the Robert F. Sibert home at 8 Book Lane. The exterior and interior is distinctly contemporary with an interesting and pleasing combination of wood and stone, coupled with interesting and pleasing furnishings in traditional styles. The second picture down shows the living room at the Claude R. Davis home, 1239 West State street. This home, designed by a local architect, was built in 1920 and is a fine example of 18th century design with the interior having many family antiques.

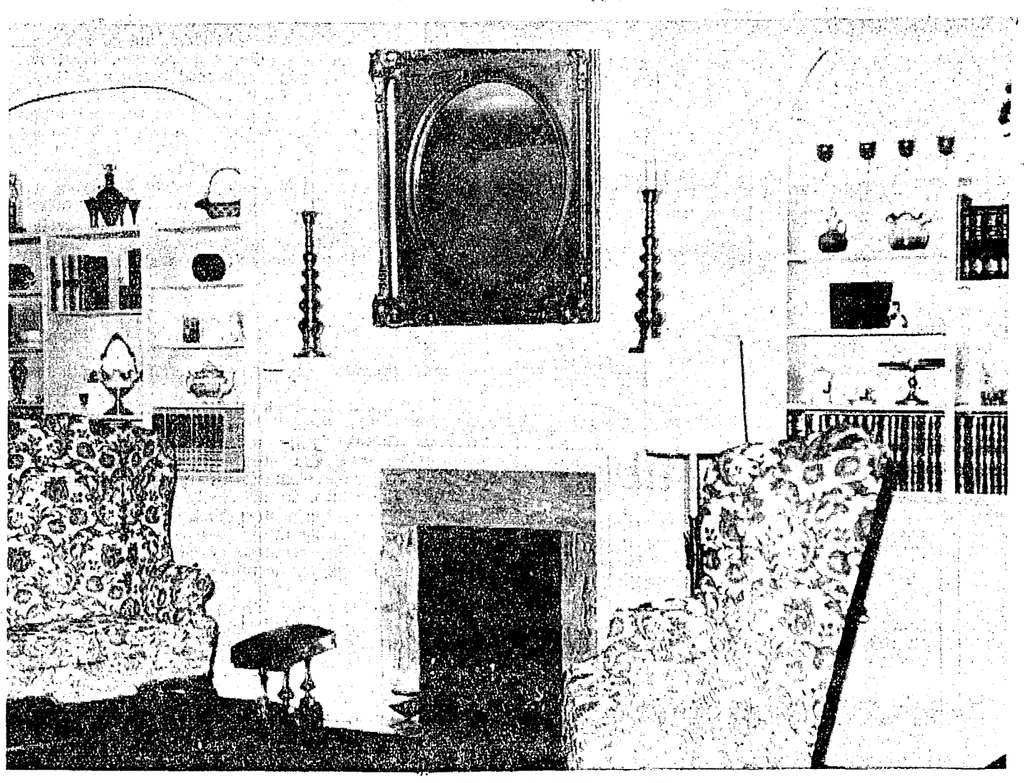

The third picture shows the handsome antique mantle in the Jack S. Mathews home, 10 Book Lane with the color scheme built around antique cranberry glass used here and in the dining room. A family room opens onto a terrace and landscaped pool area.

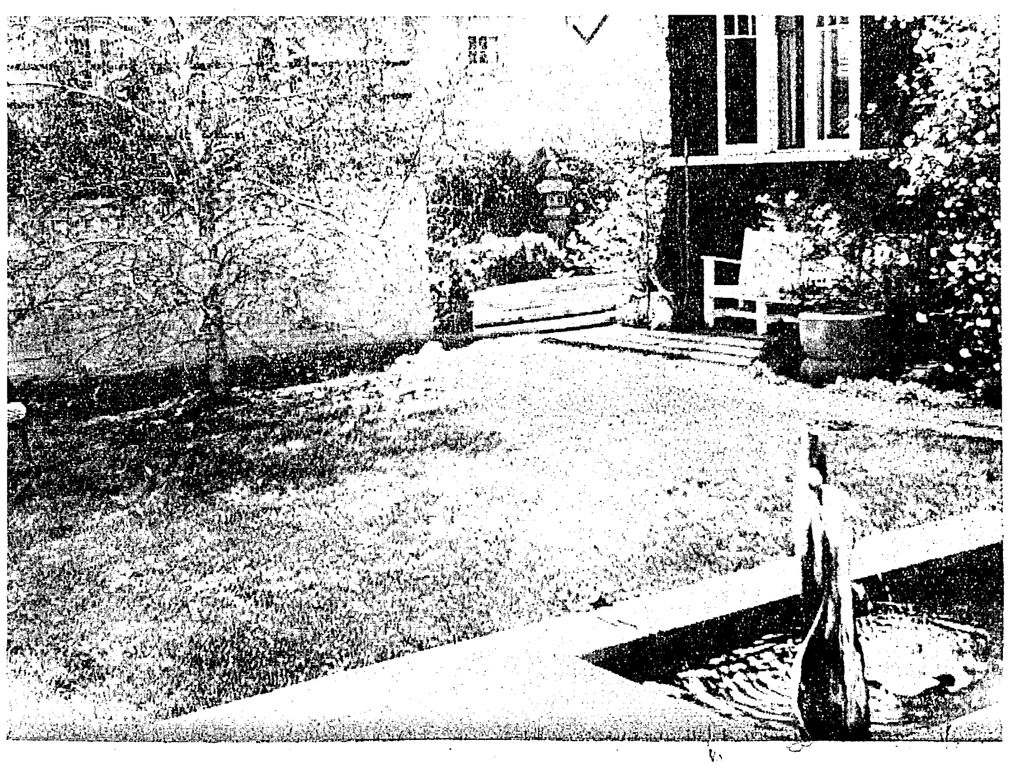

The lower left picture shows the oriental garden at the Lawrence W. Crawford, Sr. home at 130 Sandusky street. Mr. Crawford designed and made all of the garden architecture and Courtney Crouch Wright, L. A., made the plan and chose plants for the setting.

Descriptions of the homes and gardens are by Charlotte S. Cleeland, Interior Designer and Courtney Crouch Wright, Landscape Architect.

Trade On Mother's Day

On the second Sunday in May, Americans traditionally negotiate a trade. They exchange a carnation for a thousand home cooked meals. They pay with a hug and a kiss for floors scrubbed, beds made and dishes washed; they come through with a box of candy, perhaps, in return for a year's washing and ironing.

Though we may circle that second Sunday in May on the calendar, this is not what most of us see. We see, instead, a figure bending over to pick up a fallen toy or pat a sleeping child's cheek, a pair of hands bandaging a cut knee or washing an upturned little face. We see an ear that listens to an account of the day's smallest happenings, or a mouth that smiles at unnumbered corny jokes. We see a chauffeur, a human alarm clock, a homework - checker.

On Mother's Day, we trade a bit of attention for the hug and kiss that welcomes home or bids goodbye or says "I love you in spite of everything" through most of our lifetime, if we are lucky. It is small pay for much love. Yet most mothers, it appears, call this pay enough.

Nuts Need Safer Cars

The practice of quoting a man just for the sake of knocking what he says is frowned on in the better circles. But Rep. Glenn C. Cunningham of Nebraska has made a few sufficiently obtuse remarks on highway safety to warrant such treatment.

Cunningham has been among those who manage to play a lot of variations on the one-string theme that the nut behind the wheel is the most dangerous part of the car. This is characteristically said with an air of revelation, as though it were not obvious to anyone with a grain of sense.

The "real danger," Cunningham said the other day in an interview, is that they'll come up with a bill to indicate that the automobile is the principal cause." Maybe so, though few safety experts recommend any such thing. But then Cunningham said this: "It's not the automobile that causes these accidents. It's things like drunken driving, bad street markings, poor road conditions and careless driving."

With some modification—a bit more focus on the role of unsafe cars in leading to accidents—this could be accepted as a general statement of the problem. But Representative Cunningham and others of like mind, including the auto industry's axe grinders, either unwittingly or deliberately miss the point.

The point is that, no matter how bad or how good drivers are, the number and severity of accidents can be reduced by building more safety into cars. If driving performance also can be improved—and no one disputes that there is plenty of room for improvement—so much the better. But "engineering" people to drive safely is much more difficult than designing and engineering better cars—cars that make averting accidents easier, and that lessen the damage to their occupants when an accident does occur. That nut behind the wheel is the main culprit, granted, but the safer the car he drives, the less chance that he'll end up being a dead nut.

Dear Ann:

High School Rivalry Threatens Romance

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My boy friend and I attend rival high schools. It isn't just ordinary, everyday rivalry, it's real bitter competition. Our schools really hate each other.

When Bobby's school plays an out-of-town-team I always sit with him, and I cheer for his team. He does the same when my school plays an out-of-town school. But when Bobby's school plays "my" school we have real trouble deciding where to sit.

Last year I sat with him but I cheered for my own team. All the kids around made rude remarks, like, "Shut your mouth or go over where you belong." Last year Bobby sat with my school but he cheered for his team. Some of the kids who were sitting nearby threatened to do him bodily harm.

Please tell us how this problem should be handled. —NOT REALLY TRAITORS

Dear Not Really: There are bound to be mixed emotions during these highly charged events. I believe the sensible way to handle the problem is to separate when your school plays his school. Each of you will be more comfortable if you sit with your classmates.

Dear Ann Landers: For 20 years I have been married to an unhappy man. He has always had a sour attitude toward life. He resents people who are cheerful and contented.

Although my husband has done many spiteful things to hurt me, I have stayed married to him because he is basically a decent man. Our three children are turning out well and I'm sure I could not have done that job alone.

Three years ago I took up painting at my doctor's suggestion. It has been wonderful therapy for me and has led to a part-time job which I love. The job does not interfere with what I can do for my children since I leave for work after they go off to school and I am home before they return.

My husband insists that I quit the job. He says my first duty is to our home. I'm afraid that like so many people who are unhappy, he can't bear to see anyone enjoy life. He liked it better when I was miserable and half sick.

I want desperately to keep this part-time job. But suddenly I feel drained of all my strength and I no longer have confidence in my own judgment. Please help me. —TIRED TIRED TIRED

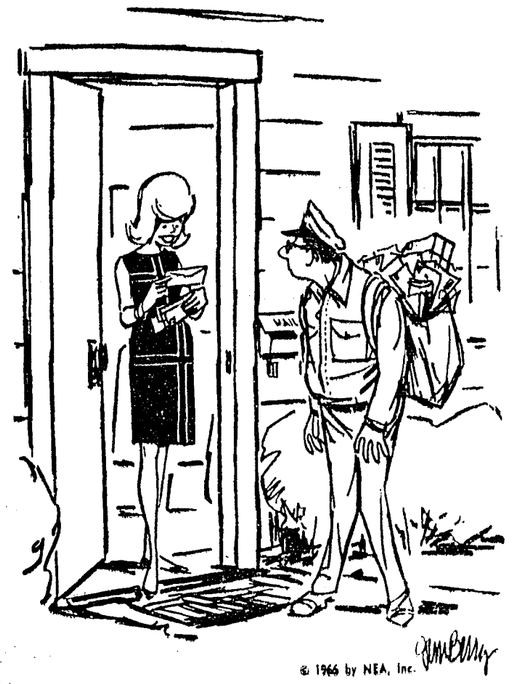

Dear Tired: Does your husband complain because the beds are unmade or the meals inadequate? Take inventory—and be honest.

If the house is not up to snuff, hire some help. But DON'T give up your part-time job! It has given you a feeling of achievement, dignity and personal worth and you must not lose it.

Confidential to Shall I Give Him A Hand?: No. Give him a foot, strategically placed. The man has been lying and sponging off decent people who trusted him. If you tolerate his presence another day—much less set him up again—you are out of your ever-lovin' mind!

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Great Leap Forward

UAW Leads In Meshing Union Actions Worldwide

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Some 24 skilled members of the United Auto Workers, laboring barely two months in leftist-oriented Guinea, already have restored to action about half the cranes and hoists rusting there in long disuse.

This trained cadre of blue-collar Peace Corps workers, sent to Guinea this year under joint Peace Corps-UAW sponsorship, could be the vanguard of many such units around the world. Projects may be mounted, for a starter, in Chile, Venezuela, India and Ethiopia.

The repair of misused or rusting equipment, as in Guinea, is really an incidental dividend of the blue-collar program. The broader aim is to train Guineans to maintain and operate their machinery on their own. The goal elsewhere will be the same.

The UAW fell into the Guinea situation. Some of its international affairs representatives, exploring the labor outlook in Africa, simply asked Guinea's leftist labor leaders what their problems were. Their answer was blunt—motive power and transport were a mess.

For the UAW, however, this unique undertaking has deeper meaning. Under the able Victor Reuther, director of its international affairs department, the union is trying in a large way to attune itself to what it sees as the internationalizing of capitalism.

The big corporations are leaping national boundaries, setting up plants in Europe, Latin America, Africa and elsewhere. The UAW figures labor must match the trend or diminish in influence.

The union is creating a pool of 50 experts to help foreign labor groups in collective bargaining, in wage research, in preparation of labor and social legislation.

This June in Detroit, three brand new "world labor councils," first of their kind, will meet as counterparts to three worldwide automotive combines. Common labor problems will form the agenda.

In the agricultural equipment field, the UAW notes that International Harvester now employs 106,000 workers in 22 countries, Massey Ferguson 92,000 in 17 countries, Caterpillar Tractor 42,000 in 13 lands. The union's theme is plain enough:

"One million, five hundred thousand UAW members joined in solidarity with 9,000,000 members of the International Metalworkers' Federation in 50 countries."

Spurred by the visit of a UAW delegation to Japan, a world trade union wage research center has been launched in Tokyo. The four Japanese labor federations run it.

The object is to make comparative studies of wages, working conditions and labor costs in Japan's metal industries, with a view to coordinating collective bargaining strategies worldwide. Japan's wage structure today is like no other.

The net of all this beginning effort, if it succeeds, could be to reduce considerably some of the more dramatic disparities in wage levels among the world's industrial nations.

But shrewdly, the UAW sees a danger for itself or any union with an eye on the international scene. Therein lies the deeper meaning of its blue-collar Peace Corps program for training foreign workers in the mechanical skills.

The truth is that in most underdeveloped lands in Africa, Latin America and Asia, the industrial worker in the UAW pattern is a relative rarity — a member of an elite living in an urban oasis surrounded by a vast rural "desert" populated by the untrained poor.

To avoid being tagged in these lands as the ally of the elite few in the cities, the UAW needs an image as a more general helpmate. Hence the Peace Corps link, and the union's involvement in health-equipment projects in India, Viet Nam and Brazil.

Pupils Give Humphrey 'Test' on S. Viet Nam

BY WASHINGTON STAFF
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Vice President Hubert Humphrey's trip to Viet Nam was probably his most important assignment under the Johnson administration.

Letters asking his opinion on all aspects of the war are still pouring into his office. Perhaps the most unusual was this one, handwritten on a sheet of paper two feet wide and three feet long by an Illinois third-grade class:

"Dear Vice President Humphrey: We are happy you are our Vice President. We have heard about Viet Nam in school. We heard that you went there. Can you please answer our questions?

"Did you like it over there? When did the war start? Who's winning? Are they running out of ammunition? Do they enjoy TV? What TV shows are on? How many men are on each side? What do they live in? How many German shepherds are there? How many dogs get killed? What do they do to help the men?"

The letter has not yet been answered. Explains one of Humphrey's staffers:

"We just haven't been able to find out how many German shepherds there are."

A WASHINGTON newsman —polishing off his income tax form on April 15 — reviewed aloud the checklist on the outside of the tax form booklet. It sounded like this:

"Name and address? Check. Social Security number? Check. Fill out each item? Check. W-2 forms? Check. Sign your return? Check. File early? Check . . . In by four p.m."

A JOKING RUMOR that has been going the rounds in the Pentagon has it that Defense Secretary Robert McNamara was for a time being seriously considered for the post of commissioner of baseball.

According to the report, the decision finally went against McNamara. The reason: It was feared that if he got the job, he would close first and third bases.

IN NEW YORK, a recent exhibit of metalwork sculpture was labeled "The Great Society." Its promoters described the figures in the exhibit as "life-size."

Obviously, no figure representing President Lyndon Johnson was present. Everybody knows he is larger than life.

BEFORE BEING elected to Congress in 1964, Rep. Ken Dyal, D-Calif., was postmaster of San Bernardino. His favorite story, naturally, is about the mails.

Two young sweethearts were split up when the boy was transferred to another city. Heartsick, he wrote a letter every day. And each day, the girl eagerly awaited the mailman.

"A year later," says Dyal, "they were married—the girl and the mailman."

ASKED TO GIVE an afternoon speech on U.S. policy toward Red China, Kentucky GOP Sen. Thruston Morton mused that he felt a bit like Daniel as he walked toward the lion's den.

"It's rumored he turned to the king and said," explained Morton, " 'I'd sort of like to be the after-dinner speaker.' "

Predicts Beatles Will Get Crew-Cuts

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Beatles all will get crew-cuts within the next five years and their squealing teen-age admirers will swap Army jackets and jeans for dresses, a leading psychiatrist predicted today.

"It's all a passing fad," said Dr. Wladimir G. Eliasberg of New York, former president of the American Society of Psychoanalytic Physicians.

"I see no deep-rooted behavior disorders in the present tendency of girls to look like boys and boys to look like girls. It's not psychi tric. It's not biological. It's not neurotic.

"It can be traced directly to social factors. It is rebellion — rebellion of the youngsters against their parents and against society."

Eliasberg, 78, German-born, European-educated, well-known author and lecturer, said in an interview that he did not subscribe to the alarm expressed in some quarters that humanity is drifting toward a "uni-sex."

Some boys are going in for shoulder-length hair, lip pomades, false eyelashes and sweet-smelling perfumes. Girls are affecting the Sassoon male hair-cuts, workmen's boots, heavy belts and apparel bought from the Army-Navy store.

"Just a wave," sighed the lean-faced, graying psychiatrist. "In my 78 years, I have seen many waves. They come and go."

Eliasberg blamed the girls for turning their boy friends into perfumed counterparts.

"Girls, teen-agers especially, abhor cave-man types," he said. "They no longer want to be dominated. They want boy companions who are subordinate to them in strength, who are sensitive and who talk a lot. They don't want masters. They want equals, or less.

FINDING THE WAY

Dr. Loew

Do You Wear a Mask?

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The story he tells seems incredible. Yet he was a renowned author, a man of integrity. I had known the stories of the masks men wear, masks behind which they hide their real selves. History is filled with men who have pretended to be brave, cowardly, joyous or cynical while literally masking their real selves. Thackeray told of the actor who removed his mask after the fall of the curtain.

"And when he's laughed and said his say,
He shows as he removes the mask,
A face that's anything but gay."

All about us there are men who wear these masks, afraid to reveal their real selves to their neighbors. Or, for that matter, to look at their real selves.

Yet this mask was different. The story is told by the late Nikos Kazantzakis, the Greek author, best known in our country as the author of "Zorba the Greek." He tells of an episode in his life, as he wandered in search of a faith.

He was in Vienna and had gone to a movie. A young woman sat beside him and, as he left, she left also. They walked for a while, striking up a conversation. They were strangers but soon he was talking in terms of meeting her again, arranging a tryst for another day. They had just met but he was now asking her if he could spend the night with her. So they arranged to meet the next day.

On his way home, he felt blood rushing to his head. When he looked at the mirror in his home he could not believe the sight. His face was swollen; he was scarcely recognizable. Obviously, he could not see the girl in this state.

The story of his mental torture during the next few days is the unforgettable agony of a man's anguish. Says Kazantzakis, "An appalling mask of flesh was glued to my face . . . I was not a man; I was a demon."

Each day he would send word, "I cannot come, will come tomorrow." But the days dragged by and the fearful condition remained. Finally, he found his way to a counsellor who pried from him his innermost secrets. This man told him that he didn't have leprosy or an incurable disease. He pointed to his inner conflict. He must leave Vienna and the proposed liaison with this girl.

The rest of his story is of his final coming to himself, leaving the city and discovering on his journey that his face was returning to normal. Once more he could look at a mirror without recoiling in horror. His conclusion:

"We all carry a great explosive force wrapped in our flesh and lard. And what is worse we do not want to know it, for then the villainy, cowardice and falsehood lose their justification; we can no longer hide behind man's supposed incompetence; we ourselves must bear the blame if we are villains, cowards, or liars, for although we have an all-powerful force inside, we dare not use it for fear it will destroy us. . . . How terrible to know that we possess this force."

It sounds like an impossible story. And yet, I remember Jesus saying: "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." His mask is not the actor's mask, something put on from the outside. His mask is from within and it is within him that the healing must come.

Mature Parent

Goodness vs. Fear

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: I am 36, a teacher and live with my mother who had a mild heart attack after my father's death two years ago. Within the past year I have developed a deep relationship with a man of different religious faith. I want to marry him, but I never come from seeing him without my mother saying: "If you marry that man, you will kill me." With my brain I know she is using her heart condition to frighten me away from marriage. But I am afraid anyway. She belongs to a very religious Christian sect. . . .

ANSWER: You're too quick to name your feeling "fear." Of course, there's fear in it—that ignoble thing. But I'm sure that there are noble elements too, in your hesitation. In addition to fear that your mother might make good on her threat to die, you also feel compassion for her as the aging, lonely fellow human she is, a loyalty and concern for her health. And I think your worried hesitation is due to your failure to credit yourself with the noble elements in it.

Seeing yourself as a coward manipulated by your mother's threat is to render yourself helpless, but to see yourself a compassionate, loyal and concerned woman is to recover power over this situation. Knowing that you want to preserve your mother's life, you can begin to set about to do it. You can consider arrangements for giving her as satisfying a life as possible after your marriage.

Popular psychology is a very dangerous thing. When it insists that we allow parents to steal our lives from us out of fear of opposing them, it makes us so ashamed of ourselves that we can't carry through on the opposition. If we see that "fear" as intermingled with fine, good feelings like compassion, loyalty and concern for another human life, then self-respect floods back to us. Instead of shivering and shaking when mother says, "If you marry, you'll kill me," we say, "No, I won't, darling. I will not kill you but keep you safe."

I do wish you could talk to a professional person about this.

Nobody wants happiness at the cost of another person's life. That doesn't mean we are scared weaklings. It means we are strong and good. But if we don't know that, the strength and the goodness can't be used to try to arrange happiness for two lives.

Slow Down, Go-Getters

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I'm worried about my husband. He never relaxes and is much too heavy. I'm afraid he's headed for a heart attack or ulcers.

A — Here are a few suggestions offered by the American Medical Assn., to help executives and most Americans preserve their health.

Exercise. Golf is fine. Brisk walks will serve just as well as golf, probably better.

Take vacations—real vacations.

Smoke less. Better still, quit smoking altogether, if you can.

Cut down on drinking.

Get plenty of sleep. Without the use of drugs, if at all possible. Put business worries out of your mind when you leave the office.

Q—I want to trim off some weight now to look good in my bikini this summer. Please give me some easy rules. Don't tell me to count calories. That makes me nervous.

A—Here is an easy guide. In general foods LOW in calories are usually thin, dilute, clear, fresh, watery or crisp. Foods HIGH in calories are usually thick, oily, greasy - crisp, smooth, gooey, sweet or sticky, compact or concentrated, alcoholic.

Use a minimum amount of fats, oils, sugars and flour in cooking. Plan meals around meat, fish, poultry, vegetables and fruit. Boil, broil, stew, bake or pressure-cook foods. Do not fry them. Keep seasoning with butter or margarine to a minimum. Use condiments, herbs, spices, green pepper and onion instead of high-calorie dressings and sauces. Use poultry often but avoid eating the skin or the dressing. Make lean meats the backbone of your eating plan but trim off all visible fat. Avoid gravies and sauces. Use fish, broiled, baked or boiled. Select fish without dark streaks. Use fluid milk or non-fat dry milk. Concoct low-calorie salad dressings using commercial yogurt in place of sour cream.

Farm Bureau Supports Bill To Alleviate Boxcar Shortage

A bill aimed at easing the nation's railroad boxcar shortage, which inhibits the movement of farm crops and farm supplies, is expected to be considered by the U. S. House of Representatives this week. The bill has already passed in the Senate.

The Illinois Agricultural Association, state-wide Farm Bureau, is urging support of the measure.

The bill, S. 1098, would allow the Interstate Commerce Commission to set higher per diem rates for boxcars leased by one railroad from another. Today it is cheaper for a railroad to rent a boxcar from another railroad than to own one.

The legislation would allow the ICC to fix the rental payment for boxcars at such levels that would encourage railroads to invest in new boxcars and maintain a freight car fleet of the size to meet the needs of the nation's economy in all sections of the country as well as the needs of national defense.

A per diem scale effective since January 1, 1964, allows railroads to lease a modern boxcar, that cost $35,000 or more to build, for $12.18 a day. Older boxcars, valued at $1,000 or less, may be leased for $2.16 a day. The current daily shortage of boxcars in the nation is estimated to average 13,000.

Congressman William L. Springer of Illinois' 22nd District, a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, has been instrumental in getting S. 1098 to the floor of the House for consideration.

"Farmers are intimately familiar and concerned about the boxcar shortage as it has developed in the past few seasons during the grain harvest in Illinois," said William J. Kuhfuss, IAA president. "This shortage is now to the point where it inhibits movement of both farm crops and farm supplies during the entire year. In our opinion, this situation may well get worse before it shows improvement. With larger combines and the trend toward picker-sheller equipment, the harvesting season will likely grow shorter.

"We realize that farmers cannot expect the transportation system nor the commercial grain companies to be totally responsible for alleviating this situation. However, we do feel that enactment of S. 1098 is reasonable for all parties concerned and would be helpful to farmers."

Illinois agricultural firms would be woefully short of boxcars were it not for boxcars with inbound products, such as potash, according to Robert Graves, director of transportation for the IAA.

Graves cited an isolated example of the kind of problem created by the boxcar shortage. A grain elevator at Symerton in Will County sold 12 carloads of soybeans in mid-March and has not been able to move the beans because not a single boxcar has been available for the elevator in a month and a half.

Passage of S. 1098 and action by the ICC would ease the boxcar shortage, but the problem would not be solved immediately. Building material shortages have slowed production of boxcars now on order.

HOG INCOME RANKS HIGH!

Hog receipts are important to Mid-West farm income. In 1964 hogs brought in one out of every five dollars of cash receipts on the farms of Illinois and Indiana. In Iowa the figure was one out of every four dollars of gross income.

Cash receipts in the nation went up about 23% in 1965, but state figures are not available as yet. This situation is the result of a reduction of about ten per cent in pork production and an increase of about forty per cent in the prices of hogs during the year.

While this year may be even more profitable than last for hog producers, the downward trend in supplies and the advance in prices is being reversed. Hog slaughter for the first three months of the year has increased by thirteen percent. Prices have declined from the $28 per hundred weight in January to around $23 at Chicago.

FROM THE CORN CRIB!

The doorbell rang the other evening.

When I answered it, there was a small boy in an outlandish costume.

He held out a paper bag and shouted, "Trick or treat!"

"Hey, Halloween was five months ago," I told him.

"I know," he said. "But I was sick."

New Cropland Program Closes Next Friday

Lester E. Martin, chairman of the Morgan County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, reminded farmers last week that sign-up for the new cropland adjustment program will close Friday, May 13.

The new program is especially attractive to farmers who want (1) to shift from production of surplus crops to other activities (2) to retire gradually from farming while continuing to live on the farm, or (3) to take advantage of local employment opportunities to work off the farm.

Farmers participating in the Cropland Adjustment Program will receive adjustment payments related to the value of the crops normally produced on the land, and conservation cost-share payments on the land diverted.

Farmers who are interested in diverting acrage under a long-term rather than an annual agreement are urged not to delay filing an application.

Goal: Odorless Waste Disposal

A confinement hog house that is self-cleaning and odorless and almost completely eliminates the labor in manure disposal is the goal of swine research now under way at the University of Illinois.

Major components of the building's experimental waste-treatment unit are a water-filled oxidation ditch under partially slotted floors, and a paddle wheel not unlike those that powered the old stern-wheelers of Mark Twain's day.

Object of the paddle wheel is to keep manure solids suspended and continuously circulating around the ditch, and to splash enough oxygen into the water to promote aerobic bacterial action.

Aerobic bacteria are the "good guys" in the U. of I. waste disposal studies. They attack and decompose manure solids without creating the offending gases and odors that their cousins, the anaerobic bacteria, have caused in many of the nation's confinement systems.

No Fly Troubles

Illinois ag engineer D. L. Day says laboratory studies last year indicated that aerobic bacteria could do a satisfactory job of stabilizing liquid swine waste without creating odors. The process did not attract flies.

This spring researchers moved their experiments out of the laboratory into a 100-pig finishing building constructed specifically for the waste-treatment studies.

The center of the building is partially slotted, with an oval oxidation ditch, 8 feet by 30 feet, located under the slats. The slotted section serves two sets of pens built back to back. The floor slopes ½ inch per foot from each side of the building, down to the water-filled ditch in the center.

Can Circulate Waste

A wall splits the middle of the ditch, but leaves both ends open so water can circulate from the paddle wheel around the other side of the ditch and back to the wheel again. The paddle wheel is powered by a ¾-horsepower motor.

Some factors researchers want to check with the experimental unit are what initial dilution of aerobic bacteria is needed to get the unit in operation and to maintain it, and how much oxidation-ditch volume is required per pig. They also want to find the power requirements needed for the wheel to churn enough oxygen into the water for most effective bacterial action.

In Holland, Minnesota

Day points out that the oxidation ditch idea for waste disposal was developed in Holland. At least one of the systems is now in experimental use in the United States for disposing of municipal waste. It's located in Glenwood, Minn., and is the only treatment plant for the town's 3,000 population.

"One of the more interesting uses of the oxidation ditch for swine is in Scotland," Day explains. "Researchers there have put a shallow ditch inside a swine building, and it feeds into a larger oxidation ditch outside."

Day says this system might have merit for keeping swine waste in the building aerobic until it is periodically moved out to a large oxidation ditch for final treatment. Several buildings might discharge into the one outside ditch.

Day notes that the U. of I. waste-oxidation studies are in the early experimental stage. Research results will not be available for some time.

THIS OXIDATION AND PADDLE WHEEL aerator are key components in an experimental hog finishing house that U.I. agricultural engineers have designed to study odorless, labor-saving manure management. Researcher Don Day, shown here, says the paddle wheel splashes oxygen into the water and keeps waste in continuous motion around the oval ditch. The oxygen sustains aerobic bacteria that decomposes manure solids without creating gases or odors.

Tom Burrus of the Victory 4-H club of the Chapin community was elected president of the Morgan County 4-H Federation Wednesday evening when delegates from all the county's clubs met at Farm Bureau hall.

Bob Williams, also of Victory, was chosen the new vice president.

11 Soybean Varieties In '66 Morgan Plots

There'll be a switch this season in the soybean variety demonstration field.

Farm Adviser George Trull has collected the seed of 11 varieties and this year they'll be planted in duplicate on two fields — one on prairie ground and one on timber soil.

Only one new variety will be tested here this season. It is Amsoy, developed in Iowa. It matures a couple of days later than Harosoy and a few days before Hawkeye.

Its performance in test plots has been very good and it appear a most likely bean for central and northern Illinois. The parent seed is being planted and the certified variety will be available to farmers in 1967.

Other varieties included in the test plots are A-100, Lindarin 63, Harosoy, Harosoy 63, Hawkeye 63, Shelby, Wayne, Clark, Clark 63, and Bellatti.

The prairie soil plot will be on the farm of James Rawlins, southeast of Woodson, and the timber soil plot will be on the Merle Sayre farm, north of Jacksonville.

CUTWORMS CONTINUE TO PLAGUE both farmers and urbanites. So entomologist Ralph Sechriest of the Illinois Natural History Survey is rearing the insect pests under controlled conditions to maintain a supply of worms for study. From his research, Sechriest hopes to uncover better insecticides and develop methods of applying insecticides for more effective control. Here he holds a worm in front of an egg-laying chamber for moths. Adults lay eggs on strings in the chamber.

Carrollton Wins Annual Land Use Contest

CARROLLTON — The five-membered team of the vocational agriculture department of the Carrollton Community high school won first place in the annual section 15 Land-Use Selection contest sponsored by the agricultural departments in the schools of the section and held Wednesday afternoon, May 4, on the Randolph Farms east of Carrollton with the local school as hosts.

The students of the Girard school placed second and Staunton placed third.

All five of the Carrollton team members placed among the first ten contestants at the contest. The individual local student ratings as judges in soil and land use were as follows: Glen Rawe, first place; Carter Wheeler, second place; Denny Adcock, third place; Joe Angle, fourth place and Gary Schofield, tenth place.

Other members who were judging from the local agriculture department were David Andrews, Terry Day, Roger Darr, David Flatt and Danny Hoots,

There were 130 contestants from 16 high schools from the surrounding six counties in attendance at the contest. The five soil profiles studied on the Randolph Brothers farm possessed many qualities which challenged soil scientists in soil study. The students were expected to examine five soil profiles to a depth of three feet and analyze the physical characteristics of color, texture, permeability and structure to determine a proper land classification as to appropriate economical uses of the land. After determining this appropriate management practices were recommended regard the use of the soil.

The Greene County Soil Conservation Service under the direction of Leroy Reeder, their Work Unit Conservationist, provided the technical assistance as well as the location of the soils for the contest. Dana Grantham of Carrollton, soil scientist, and Donald Phillips of Vandalia, also a soil scientist, evaluated the five soil profiles used in the event.

'Free Corn' Supplies Larger Than Normal, Bearish On Market

Recently released USDA estimates of the April 1 grain inventory have confirmed important facts that will influence corn price trends this spring and summer, according to University of Illinois grain marketing economist L. F. Stice.

The USDA report indicates that market prices are currently being supported by a strong market demand for corn in the U. S. and abroad, the lack of boxcars to move to market corn that is already sold by the Commodity Credit Corporation, and the moderate rate at which farmers have marketed their 1965 crop.

The estimates also confirm that, although total U.S. corn stocks were about the same this April 1 as a year earlier, the "free supplies" of corn to be marketed from now until the 1966 corn harvest are much larger than in 1965 and well above prospective needs.

Stice says total April 1 U.S. stocks of corn were 2,900 million bushels compared with 2,862 million a year earlier, an increase of only 1.3 percent. However, on-farm stocks were 237 million bushels larger, stocks in CCC bins were 122 million bushels smaller, and stocks in commercial mills and elevators were 77 million bushels smaller than in 1965.

Use of Corn Up

Because of the high disappearance rate, the over-all supply figures alone are not bearish, Stice says. Corn disappearance from October through March totaled 2,442 million bushels compared with 2,250 million a year earlier. About half of this 192-million-bushel increase was exported and half was used in the U.S. Stice says that at this rate of use disappearance from April through September will be about 1,836 million bushels compared with 1,692 million a year earlier. And, the total 1965-66 disappearance will be about 4,277 million bushels—100 million over the record 1965 corn crop of 4,171 million bushels.

The bearish factor in the outlook for the coming months is the increase in "free stocks"—corn not owned by CCC or under government loan. From the April 1 report, it appears that "free stocks" total about 2,184 million bushels. That's 348 million bushels more than the prospective April - September disappearance of 1,836 million bushels.

In addition, farmers will redeem and sell some of the 188 million bushels of 1965 corn now under loan. Also, CCC will continue to sell some corn. Both sources will add to the free market supplies, Stice points out.

Much In Illinois

The ownership and location of the "excess corn" is also a factor in the corn outlook, he says. More than half of the 237-million-bushel increase in April 1 farm stocks was in Illinois and Indiana. These states are ones in which the quantity of corn resealed and under loan is small.

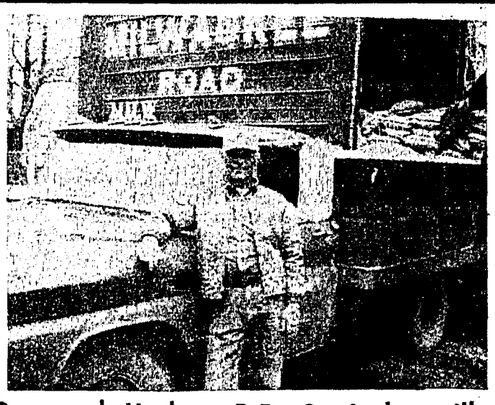

A substantial amount of the 378 million bushels of CCC sales has not moved to market because of the transportation shortage. For example, April 1 stocks in CCC bins were 262 million bushels, but CCC's non-committed paper inventory was only 175 million.

These facts suggest that if "free supplies" can move to market and 1966 corn production prospects are good, corn prices will work lower during the summer months, Stice says.

BACKWARD BOMBER

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

The XB-70 hypersonic 2,000 mile per hour bomber almost seems to be flying backward because its horizontal tail fins are mounted at the nose and its wings at the back. This arrangement is called a Canard. Since "Canard" means a "hoax" it is an appropriate name for this backward-looking bomber.

The XB-70 is not the first high speed aircraft to use the canard arrangement, although it is the first manned plane to do so. The first was the X-10 unmanned aircraft. The X-10 tested out the design for the second stage of the Navaho intercontinental hypersonic cruise (flying) missile. Although the development of the Navaho was cancelled because of the development of the much faster Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles (ICBMs) it did contribute valuable information to the development of the XB-70.

Startling Sight

Perhaps even more startling than the canard arrangement of the XB-70's wings and tail is the way it thrusts its needle-sharp nose out into the air like the neck of an angry swan. This odd shape was chosen so that the XB-70 could get added lift from the shock wave created by its 2,100 mile-per-hour cruising speed.

As this bomber hurtles along faster than a rifle bullet its needle sharp nose pushes air aside like the prow of a speed boat on a calm lake.

Rides Own 'Wake'

The plane climbs atop the shock wave and rides like a speed boat riding its own wake. This gives the XB-70 a bonus of 30 per cent more lift from the shock wave that held back earlier planes.

Although the XB-70 is not a prototype for the supersonic transport, it is contributing greatly to it. Major Al White, XB-70 test pilot, reports that there is little noise aboard the bomber — even when it pierces the sound barrier.

Also, the cabin is comfortable enough to allow pressure suits to be dispensed with when the test program is completed. The XB-70 is equipped with an emergency system that will separate the entire cockpit and parachute it back to earth if anything goes wrong.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

By John Rankin

Tom and Billie decide to investigate the old, tumble-down, unoccupied house that many people said was haunted. They bravely go on despite ominous creakings, and even go into the house. But they are confronted by the awful sight of "old Jelkie" swaying in the dim light without a head.

For the mere fraction of a second perhaps, the terror-stricken youths stood paralyzed with fear before the ghastly thing. Then like a pair of frightened rabbits fleeing from a cat they scurried down the stairway and fled from the scene as fast as their nimble legs would carry them.

Policeman Has Question

Just as the terrified youngsters reached the street a patrol car cruised by, stopped, backed up and a burly policeman got out.

"Hey! What have you kids been up to in there?" he asked with a trace of suspicion in his voice.

For the next several moments Sergeant Burke listened patiently as Tom and Billy unfolded their horror-filled story of the goings-on in the old house.

"So old Jelkie has showed up without his head, eh?" he said with a good - natured grin at the conclusion. "Okay, kids I'll go back with you and maybe I'll get a look at the old gaffer too," he added, and struck out across the lawn toward the old house.

Swinging around to the back of the house the tall policeman paused briefly, a humorous glint showing in his eye as he glanced up at the forsaken, dust-covered porch.

"Seems that old Jelkie's spirit was not expecting guests and has departed," he said with a laugh. Then with Tom and Billy keeping close on his heels he skipped up the stairs to the eerie-looking door and with a flourish swung it open and went in.

Strange Sights

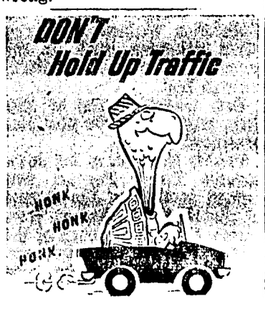

Strange things began to happen then. Suddenly the spacious room glowed with a fiery red light that turned slowly into a soft green—then a pinkish yellow that lasted several seconds —and then just a rapidly as they had flashed on the lights blinked out and the room was swathed in inky darkness!

"There's something funny going on here," Sergeant Burke said between clenched teeth, and began groping his way to the door and to his dismay found it locked! Sensing danger then he moved quickly to get the boys in a corner behind him, and with a cool head and steady nerves he drew his service revolver and waited.

Soon a series of wailing, moaning sounds came from afar . . . followed by an icy, sinister voice right in the very room that fairly chilled the already terror - stricken youngsters when it said. "Beware! do not disturb the sleeping spirits!"

A deadly silence followed.

Prayer Poem

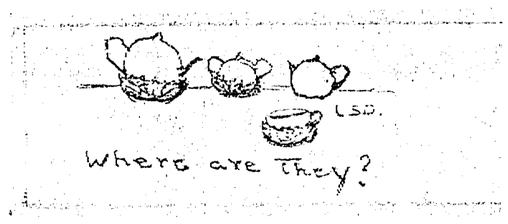

Mother

By Mary Pence Claywell

It may be a mansion, or cottage
so small . . .
Or only a shack...with a patched-up wall . . .
Or maybe a trailer...on a small spot of ground,
With dozens of others, all clustered round:
No matter, the setting, the kind . . . or the place,
It's HOME... because of a dear mother's face;
And sometimes, the humbler, or quainter the ground ...
The sweeter...the MEMORIES, we carry around:
Oh childhood will vanish . . .and riches can fly,
But MEMORIES of MOTHER, Lord . . . never will die
It's the first face, for which, little babes learn to fret,
And one that a wayward one ... never forgets;
It's the one that looked down on a wee cradle there . . .
Or one warmed by love ... and a crown of gray hair:
GOD Bless you, our Mothers, who now smile upon
The wee ones, still reaching ... or grown-up ones,
Who may now be scattered . . . in many a land . . .
Where LOVE can still REACH . . . though it's too far, for hand:
You're still reigning QUEEN ... in all hearts today . . .
For MOTHER and HOME SCENES . . . can not die away!

HIGH WATER

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

"Stop pushing me," a struggling sassafras tree scolded a rushing creek at flood stage.

"I can't help it," the frothy creek complained, "There's too much water, it won't stay in my banks." The current tore gaping holes as it moved through the soft mud.

"Do something before I am washed out," the tree begged, its leaves now twisted in a swirling whirlpool.

Quickly the flood eddied into a brush pile to move it toward the wavering sprout, a tangle of drift followed, then soggy leaves were pressed upon the treelet's roots until they were wedged underneath it all.

"Now you are fixed," the creek called to its young friend and tumbled across a meadow against a great oak.

Dishes Washed Away

"Look what you have done!" the oak fumed, "Washed away sets and sets of dishes!"

"I don't see any dishes," the flood whimpered, "Anyway I can't help it. There isn't room for me here!"

"You very well know that little girls make acorn tea sets with tiny sprigs bent into handles for their cups, sugar bowls, creamers, and teapots. Now where are they?"

"Why can't they make some more?" the bewildered creek asked and hurried out of this trouble to spill over a sprouting corn field, covering every leaf with ooze. Even more hastily it pushed past a scowling farmer glaring over his mud covered land.

Bridge Falls

At top speed it dived under a dark bridge. Heavy timbers shook and swayed then dropped into the surging water.

"Ouch! You are hurting me! Get off my back!" the creek roared but the bridge was too disturbed to talk, furthermore dirt filled the water for the road had washed out.

"I can't see through this mud," the teetering bridge moaned, "where am I going?" Nor did the creek know. Onward it frothed and wallowed spreading where it had never been before. . .

Let's Go Birding

Albino Birds

By Emma Mae Leonhard

According to reports made to us by interested bird observers, albino birds have been more numerous in our area this spring than usual. We think of birds as albino when they show white feathers on some part of the body in place of the natural-colored ones. Sometimes the bird may be mostly white.

Because of the strange white feathers, which may appear on any kind of bird, we may think that we have seen a very rare one. For example, we saw a sparrow-sized bird with prominent white markings in the wings which showed plainly as it flew back into the matted tree growth. Could we possibly have a Lark Bunting, a rare bird indeed for this area?

As we studied it more carefully, we saw white feathers in its tail too, which no true Lark Bunting has. We finally decided that we had only an English Sparrow sporting rare toggery—an albino sparrow.

Pale Robins

Each year Jacksonville has one or two albino robins. We have heard of two of them within the last three weeks: one on Pine Street and one on Barn Lane. Perhaps there have been more around. Albino robbins look a bit anemic; we like the healthy - looking ones better, and most robins do too.

Just last week among the numerous grackles — too numerous — appeared one with white feathers in its long black tail. Maybe it was trying to win us over to grackles; but its bill was just as long and threatening to baby birds and bird eggs as that of the all-black grackle, and its glaring white eyes as impudent and threatening. This albino grackle was still a grackle even in its new "tails."

A week ago we saw the whitest albino of this area, an albino Gadwall on Smith Lake, not far from Meredosia. As we were looking at the flock of familiar Mallards and some Gadwalls close to the far bank, out swam a white duck.

Was it a domestic duck lost in the wild? Upon careful observation we decided that it was a Gadwall; for it displayed the characteristic black rump and seemed at home with the other Gadwalls.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Sorry, sir, we only serve minors!"

matter of fact

Probably more books have been written about birds than any other member of the animal world. There are between 10,000 and 12,000 living species of birds, and human curiosity about them is greater than ever. It is estimated that, in North America, 250,000 persons own at least one book about birds. In Great Britain, the figure is 100,000 persons. In the latter nation, one book about birds is published every week.

NICHOLS PARK LADIES DAY GOLF NEWS

Don't let anyone tell you, ladies are fragile and cowardly! This morning sure proved this to be wrong. We had twelve brave ones out, and I think should have received medals. It was cold, windy, and a few sprinkles of rain, but we kept right on golfing. I guess they took the little poem serious, about nothing could stop golfers if they really wanted to go.

The event for the day was: "Blind Partners," Suzie Tucker, as chairman. She selected partners as follows:

Sarah Warner-Fran Chumley.
Rigi Fay-Elizabeth Topf.
Mary Ellen Glisson-Evelyn Cruzan.
Lucille Eberhardt-Betty Dyer.
Suzie Tucker-Dorothy Walker.
Alphia Witham-Verna Deane Hayes.

The proud and cold winners were: Mary Ellen Glisson, and Evelyn Cruzan, 103; not bad girls, weather didn't seem to bother them too much, and I'm sure they will be thawed out by next Tuesday, we hope.

Rigi Fay, Low putts: 15. Don't feel bad—we can blame the weather this time.

As for the rest of us, we won't mention our totals, or the amount of balls that was put in the lake. We will just forget them, and be back next Tuesday, —ready to try again.

Until then,—keep your winter clothes handy,—and practice,—practice,- practice,- who knows, —it might help!

Morrow-Stephens

A mid-afternoon ceremony Saturday, May seventh, at the First United Presbyterian church in Rushville united in marriage Miss Sue Ann Stephens of that city and Verbal A. Morrow of Athensville, Illinois.

The Reverend John C. Roberts officiated for the double ring ceremony. William DeVitt sang two numbers during the nuptial prelude. Baskets of lilacs and white gladioli adorned the church altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeVere Stephens of Rushville and the groom is the son of the Dean Morrows of Athensville.

Miss Jane Stephens was her sister's maid of honor and another sister, Miss Mary Morrow, was bridesmaid.

John Leonhard of Oak Park, Illinois was best man and the groom's brother, George Morrow of Athensville, was groomsman. Ushers were Jerry Smith and Charles Brunk, both of Springfield; Terry Hutton of Chicago and William Boston of Jacksonville.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a sheath gown of silk peau with lace applique and featuring a detachable train. The pearls and crystals embellishing the lace on her gown were repeated in the matching lace cap which held her veil of illusion. She carried a white prayer book with lily of the valley and ivy.

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in orchid crepe and lace and carried lilacs and white glads.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua sheath with matching color accessories and the groom's mother was in dusty pink with matching accessories. Each wore a white orchid corsage.

Guests were entertained at a reception at the Virginia in Scripps Park after which the couple left for a Bermuda honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow will make their home at 2021 South Fourth street in Springfield.

Those Heavy Doors

Fifty years ago today the JOURNAL printed this item:

Not long since the front doors at the court house were changed to open outward in accordance with the law, and new doors with larger glass were hung.

This was the set of front doors for the court house. The original set was made of iron, which was the fashionable court house door in 1860 and for years afterwards.

But after 1900 most counties were getting rid of the massive doors and replacing them with something lighter and easier to handle.

New doors were put in here in May, 1907, and the change prompted the following essay taken from the COURIER:

TONS OF ENERGY WERE EXPENDED ON THE DOORS. Citizen Talks of Improvement Recently Made at Court House.

A man who has business to transact at the court house grew thoughtful the other day while contemplating the new doors that now adorn Morgan County's temple of justice. Among other things he said:

For twenty odd years I have been making from three to ten visits to the court house every day except Sunday. During the greater part of the year the front doors are closed and it was necessary they be pushed open before I could enter. If one has ever opened the front door of the Morgan county court house an idea can be formed of the energy that it required to push it.

The amount of force is realized more fully now since the new doors have been swung. It took several pounds pressure to push the old door in. I have no idea how many, but if I was to figure it up and take the probable number of times I have swung the old heavy door and multiply that number by the number of pounds of push required it would foot up a startling sum — hundreds of tons. If you don't believe it do a little figuring yourself.

I have wasted enough energy during those twenty years to have accomplished many things that would on first suggestion seem to be impossible. Think how many hundreds of miles a man might push a baby buggy without expending nearly so much energy, and then how the baby would enjoy it.

How far could I have rowed a boat in Meredosia bay while going fishing, the boat containing one other man, a case of lager beer and fifty pounds of ice? If you are good at figures there is one that will hold you. Again, with the expenditure of that same amount of energy, how many beers could I have drawn in across the counter?

This is a matter of great possibilities and anyone with a penchant for figures might sit down and figure out what might possibly have been done with the energy wasted in my efforts to get into the court house.

I say wasted because the doors should never have been so heavy. But then it is all over now and I have gained nothing else I have developed my right arm until it is about 25 per cent larger and stronger than its fellow.

FIRST MEMORIAL DAY — Brig. Gen. Oscar W. Koch, Ret., left, and John W. Allen, regional historian formerly with the Southern Illinois University, raise the flag which is flown daily at Woodlawn Cemetery, Carbondale, Ill., where the centennial of the first formal "Decoration Day" will be observed May 30. Gen. John A. Logan was the speaker, and 219 Civil War veterans marched in the parade when the first commemorative ceremony was held in 1866, according to notes made by the cemetery sexton. Both Northern and Southern veterans and one unknown soldier are buried here. Allen is president of the Carbondale Memorial Day Association. General Koch is chairman of the centennial committee.

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Sentinel:

Our streets were enlivened Thursday by the advent of Yankee Robinson's mammoth consolidated shows. The 40 horses, four abreast, drawing the band wagon; the camel, the elephant, and the dog team excited considerable interest among the juveniles and the citizens.

Our thanks are due to James McDonnell, Esq., of Franklin, for another considerable addition to our subscription club at that place. Can't our friends at Waverly do likewise?

The Morgan County Medical Society was organized at the court house Thursday, April 28th. Dr. R. E. McVey of Waverly was chosen president and Dr. W. S. Edgar of this place secretary. A committee was appointed to prepare a constitution for the permanent organization of the Society. Drs. Anderson of Franklin, Welch of Concord, McVey of Waverly, Prince and Edgar of Jacksonville.

The drawn out contested election case between John Trabue and Horace Chapin, for the office of county clerk, is ended. Capt. Chapin withdrew from the contest, paying all the costs, which amounted, we learn, to some $300.

The foundation walls are being laid for the new woolen factory on South Main street, just south of the brook. The building is to be large and substantial, of brick with heavy foundation walls of rock, dimensions 80 feet front on Main street and 200 feet deep. Jacksonville being a railroad center, located in a wealthy agricultural section, is an alluring point for the investment of capital in manufactories.

During the exhibit of Yankee Robinson's shows in this city, on last Thursday, it became evident that an active corps of pickpockets was operating in the crowd. Wm. Boice had his pocket picked for $30. Wm. Metcalf had his wallet with some money extracted in scientific style, and several other cases were reported.

From the Carrollton Gazette:

We are told some of the young men in town have rented a room for a private billiard hall.

Messrs. Geary & Driver is the style of a new firm who have bought a steam thrashing outfit for use this season.

Messrs. Allen & Bro., of Greenfield, have been making repairs to their machinery, and are now prepared to make flour, or card wool, at short notice and in the best style. The enterprise of the Messrs. Allen is worthy of reward, which they will, no doubt, reap abundantly.

A number of legal advertisements from Calhoun county appear in this week's paper.

Artemus Ward says the railroad from San Francisco to St. Louis is now completed, except 1,503 miles, which is by stage, which serves to break the monotony of the trip.

The authorities of Augusta, Georgia, have forbidden the freedmen from strewing flowers on the graves of Union soldiers.

A procession began at the school, and was met at the gates of the cemetery by the Mayor of the city and a strong force of police, and despite the entreatics of the teachers, and tears of the poor negroes, was utterly refused permission.

The ladies of Columbus, Miss., recently decorated the graves of the Confederate dead in the cemetery of that city. They also paid the same mark of respect to the memory of some forty Federal soldiers buried near by. This act elicits the approval of the press of that city, which claims that the war being over no distinction should be made between the departed heroes of opposite sides.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis was permitted to visit her husband at Fortress Monroe last week.

The editor of a new paper in Nebraska begins his introductory salutation in the following sentence: "The object in view in the establishment of this paper is the promotion of mental wherewith to buy bread and butter and good clothes."

A widow of Danville, Ky., took an orphan boy to raise. Quite small, and when he arrived at the age of 18 she married him. she then being in her 50th year. They lived many years together, happy as any two persons could be, when such an orphan girl to raise. Last fall the old lady died, being 86 years of age, and in seven weeks after. the old man married the girl they had raised, he being 65 years old, and she 18.

A case involving the legal and constitutional right of polygamy is in process in Salt Lake City. A Gentile married a lady who was divorced from the wife in polygamy of one of the Mormon leaders. The lady, fearing that her children would be claimed by the Mormon, brought the case directly before the United States Court. It was postponed, and in the interim her new husband was shot dead while in the company of the United States Marshal and in open daylight.

Railway Historians Set Trip

Railroad enthusiasts have chartered an Illinois Central passenger train for a 420-mile round trip from St. Louis to Havana, Ill., Saturday, May 14. The excursion, sponsored by the St. Louis chapter, National Railway Historical society will be open to the public.

The special train will make a non-stop speed run from St. Louis to Clinton, Ill., and will then operate over a single-track, freight-only line to Havana. This will be the first passenger train between Clinton and Havana in 38 years.

For this excursion, the NRHS has obtained the railroad's fastest type of diesel locomotive. A baggage car with snack counter will offer sandwiches and light refreshments at reasonable prices. A deluxe parlor-lounge car will be at the rear of the train.

At Clinton, junction of six Illinois Central lines, passengers will have the opportunity to photograph the train as a diesel freight engine is coupled onto the rear. Two special photo stops and movie runs will be made along the freight line to Havana.

For persons wishing to board the train at Clinton, Ill., there is a special round-trip rate of $7 for adults, $3.50 for children ages 5 through 11, and $1 for youngsters under five.

The special train will connect for Chicago passengers with the Illinois Central Green Diamond from Chicago and will leave Clinton at 11:30 a.m. for Havana and will return at about 5:30 p.m.

Special events are planned in Havana by Jaycees and a bus tour will be available. Special souvenirs of this historic run will be presented to each passenger.

It will be necessary to purchase your tickets in advance so that space can be provided in the cars which will come from St. Louis. They are available at the Illinois Central Depot in Clinton or by mail from the St. Louis Chapter NRHS, 6412 Printz Ct., St. Louis, Mo. 63116. The Chapter president is Ray Gehl at St. Louis 314-FLi-9725.

A GUARDED ACCOUNT OF IT.—A man asked the cause of his father's death, answered that "while he was addressing a large outdoor assemblage of people, who were listening to his remarks with the deepest interest, a portion of the platform on which he was standing gave way beneath him, whereby he was precipitated several feet with such violence as to break his neck". His father was hung.

An Irish peasant being asked why he permitted his pig to take up his quarters with his family, made an answer abounding with satirical naiveté: "Why not? Doesn't the place afford every convenience that a pig can require?"

Final Exhibit At Strawn Gallery Opens Sunday

The vitality of art in the United States in recent decades is depicted in an exhibition of paintings by twenty-four leading American artists that will be shown at Strawn Art Gallery starting May 8 and continuing through May 21. Called "Cross currents: 24 Americans," the collection is on loan from the Department of Arts and Sciences of International Business Machines Corporation.

The exhibition, which deals with the 40 years from 1920 to 1960, is a representative selection of the painting styles prevalent in the United States in that period. Vivid contrasts in both style and content will be found in such works as "Nocturne," an abstract work by Byron Browne; "Guitar Player," an expressionist painting by Max Weber; "Composition (C Car 293," a classically objective work by Edward Hopper and the nostalgic fantasy of "Red Checkered House," a primitive painting by Grandma Moses.

Other artists represented in the exhibit include John Marin, Priscilla Roberts and Andrew Wyeth.

The exhibition is one of nine touring art exhibitions and five touring science shows that IBM lends to museums, colleges and libraries throughout the country. Last year the company's touring exhibitions visited 135 cities in the United States and were viewed by more than a million people.

This is the last exhibit of the 1965-66 season. Gallery hours are weekdays three to five and seven to nine p.m., Sundays three to five only. Exhibits, as always, are open to the public without charge.

One-Fourth of Mankind

(17) China a la Mode

by Don Oakley and John Lane

For arts and manner of government I think noe Kingdome in the world comparable to it. —Peter Mundy, first Englishman to visit China

Two and three centuries after Columbus, Europe finally began discovering China.

Distance lent enchantment, but so too did the many products merchants were bringing back—wallpaper, lacquered furniture, tea, objets-d'art and, especially, porcelain—"china." Chinese themes—"chinoiserie"—influenced Rococco architecture and gardens.

Reading the glowing accounts sent by the Jesuits, men like Voltaire and Leibnitz praised China's government as the best ever conceived, one in which philosophers, if they were not kings, were at least the king's officials. Rationalists saw in Confucianist China proof that morality needed no priests or dogmas.

While it lasted, Sinophilism provided a cultural and humanistic impetus in Europe. When it ended, it was replaced by growing contempt for the "heathen Chinee."

In the beginning, though, contempt was a monopoly of China. Unfortunately, the behavior of some of those who went there did little to dispel Chinese xenophobia.

The Portuguese had been granted a concession at Macao in 1557. They were followed in the next century by the rival Dutch and English. By the 18th century, the latter had attained a monopoly of the China trade. The first American ship arrived in 1784.

Unable to keep the "foreign devils" out entirely, the Chinese tried their time-honored tactic of playing one barbarian off against another. Trade was restricted to the port of Canton and all dealings had to be handled through the Co-hong, a monopolistic association of merchants, who occupied nearly the bottom of the Chinese social scale. Government officials all along the line extracted their "squeeze" from the profits.

In 1792, Britain sent Lord Macartney as head of its first diplomatic mission to China. After much dispute over the question of kowtowing—literally knocking one's head against the floor nine times before the emperor—he was permitted to present his request.

In his answer to George III, the Emperor Ch'ien Lung noted the king's "humble desire to partake of the benefits of our civilization" but informed him nevertheless that "our Celestial Empire possesses all things in prolific abundance . . . (We) have no need for your country's merchandise."

It was not a reply calculated to win friends and influence monarchs.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In her film perform.ances, Jeanne Crain has long presented a portrait of serenity. It is no illusion.

Could there be any doubt that she is just as serene in real life? Not when you consider how she manages an acting career and a family of seven children, ranging from a collegiate to a 10-month old.

How does she do it?

"I have no system," she said. "The only way I operate is to take one thing at a time. I never worry about things until they happen."

Whatever her method, it seems to agree with her. She has reached the age when life is supposed to begin, yet she retains the fresh beauty she exhibited in "Margie," "Centennial Summer," "Letter to Three Wives," "Pinky" and other memorable films of her 20th Century-Fox career.

Now she has joined with another Fox graduate, Dana Andrews in a new film, "52 Miles to Terror." It is being made at MGM as a two-hour movie for television, although it may be released in theaters first.

"It feels good to be working again," she said in her dressing room. "This is the first picture I've done since I had Christopher. He was our afterthought."

Christopher last year joined the family which already included: Paul Jr., 19 and a student at Loyola University (Los Angeles); Mike, 17; Tim, 15; Jeanine, 14; Betsy, 8; and Mia, 6. Father is Paul Brinkman.

Admittedly, the Brinkmans have it easier than most large families, since they employ a gem of a couple who have helped manage the household for 10 years.

"They've been with us since before the three youngest children were born," said Jeanne, "so they're really a part of the family. Also, the older children take care of the younger ones, and two of the boys can drive, so it's no problem for Paul and me to get away."

That can happen, since much of her film-making in recent years has been in Europe. Her last one was a German-Italian-Yugoslavian production.

Jeanne will be stationed here in the future, since she is embarking on her first television series next fall. She has been cast with Howard Duff in "Men Against Evil," which will be made at her old alma mater, 20th Century-Fox.

Editor's Note: Starting next Monday, Bob Thomas will be reporting the movie scene from film locations in Europe.

Farmers Responsible For High Groceries! Now, Who Said That?

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Capital groups feuding over the administration's anti-inflation policies affecting agriculture seemingly agree on one thing—that the farmer is being made "a whipping boy."

But on the question of who is wielding the lash there is sharp difference of opinion.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, in a speech Wednesday defending the administration's farm policies, said the whippers include "certain big city newspapers and political office seekers." He named no names.

But nearly three weeks ago, the American Farm Bureau Federation charged that the administration is making a "whipping boy" of the farmer in its campaign against inflation. The Farm Bureau said administration spending is the real culprit.

"No Apology Needed"

This attack on administration actions relating to farm commodities has not been limited to the Farm Bureau, long a critic of federal farm price and production control programs.

After President Johnson called for a slowdown of food and farm prices, Tony T. Dechant, president of the National Farmers Union, said there is no need to apologize for farm prices. In the few cases where there are food shortages and high prices, he said, government programs have not been sufficient to encourage ample production.

A few days later the Farmers Union executive committee issued a statement saying that President Johnson, his Council of Economic Advisers and the Budget Bureau were "not in tune" with needs of farmers.

Similar criticism came from a number of Democratic leaders in Congress, including chairman Harold R. Cooley, D-N.C., of the House Agriculture Committee, and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Finding himself caught in the middle Freemen met Wednesday with eight farm-state senators.

No Comments, Now

All parties declined to give details of what was discussed at the breakfast meeting called by the agriculture secretary.

But there were reports the secretary sought to assure the senators, who have been swamped by protests from their farmer constituents, that he would seek administration actions to calm the uproar.

Publicly, Freeman denies that farm prices are inflationary or that the administration is seeking to put a lid on them.

He describes recent administration actions as designed to stabilize prices by eliminating price changes resulting from ups or downs of production.

One such recent action was the increase in the import quota for cheddar cheese, which was accompanied by a boost in the support price for manufacturing milk—the grade used for making butter and cheese—of 26 cents per hundredweight.

More Imported Cheese

President Johnson followed that with the request that the tariff commission study the possibility of a further increase in the cheese import quota. Administration officials said this move was designed to equalize the competition for manufacturing milk between makers of butter and cheese.

The cheese market has been good and manufacturers have been outbidding butter manufacturers for the available milk.

The farmers complained that the administration could have solved the problem by another increase in the price support for manufacturing milk. This, they said, would have raised the supply.

According to reports from Wednesday's meeting, Freeman said he would propose a price support increase.

Other areas reportedly discussed by the senators and Freeman were the stiffer controls on hide exports and the recent Defense Department decisions to purchase oleomargarine rather than butter for the armed forces and to cut down on pork purchases.

Less Than Parity

The chief point of the critics is that there is no reason to try to halt price advances of farm products which are selling at less than the parity price goal of farm legislation. Virtually all are below parity.

But Freeman said any actions taken by the government are designed to cope with what he called "unrealistic levels" flowing from "exaggerated cyclical reductions" in production caused mainly by bad weather.

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Water

Nearly everyone in the past few years has experienced some problem caused by too much water when we don't want it or too little when we do want it.

Farmers have had to haul water. Some cities have had to haul water or take other emergency measures. New Yorkers had to cut down this last summer. Many householders have had to quit watering lawns, washing cars, etc. Growth of cities has been limited by the supply of water. Location of industries is dictated by the supply of water.

Farmers know only too well the difficulties of having water where and when it is needed. They know well the hazards of water pollution, the difficulties with highly mineral water, etc.

When we talk of water we must not only consider how to have enough for our use when we need it and where we need it, we must consider how we can control it when it falls from the sky, forms streams of various sizes, causes erosion and possibly floods. These things have become commonplace and we must take action to control the erosion which water causes and also do what we can to maintain a supply of water for use when and where we want it.

Soil and water conservation must be practiced. Productivity cannot be maintained if the soil is washed away.

The use of contour planting, terracing, sod waterways and the building of ponds are practices which will help greatly with both aspects of our water problem.

Ponds provide water for livestock and possibly for home use. They impound water, cutting erosion. They provide a potential fishing spot and, if supervised well a potential swimming spot.

Consult with the staff of your Soil Conservation District. They can make a farm plan for you, and recommend and aid in laying out proper soil and water conservation practices for your farm.

Besides saving soil contours, waterways and ponds are things of beauty.

Now is the time . . .

. . . Plant corn. Watch that planter.

. . . Drive carefully.

. . . Eat sensibly.

. . . Set out garden plants.

. . . Watch baseball.

. . . Be careful of sunburn.

To me conservation means the wise use of the things God gave us. Through wise use of these natural resources the greatest number of people can receive the greatest benefit.

What will today's children be able to tell their children they did without?

LAW on the farm

USE OF GROUNDWATER STILL UNRESTRICTED

Illinois land has a value that is too often not appreciated, at least not until the well runs dry. That value is water. Under present law, a farmer or any landowner may take all of the groundwater he can use from wells on his property. It is considered as much a part of the land as the soil itself and may be used in any amount and for any reasonable purpose.

In fact, there are situations in which an owner can in effect take water from his neighbors even if he makes no use of it. For example, the business of stripmining frequently causes surrounding wells to go dry. From the farmer's viewpoint, if an adjacent owner uses a valuable product, such as minerals, he should bear the responsibility for any damages caused by its use. But, according to Illinois law, the farmer has no recourse and no damages. He must just dig deeper for his supply of water or use his land in another way. The old rule that one cannot use one's property in such a way as to injure another does not hold in this case.

There are, however, a few legal restrictions on groundwater use. No one is allowed to unlawfully pollute groundwater. Likewise, no one is allowed to deplete his groundwater for the malicious purpose of drying up his neighbor's supply. In addition, a few laws have been passed to regulate the construction and maintenance of water wells. These laws provide that:

1. A log of all drilled wells must be filed with the State Geological Survey Division.

2. If a well will penetrate the subsurface below the glacial drift, a permit must be obtained from the State Department of Mines and Minerals.

3. Since 1965, an abondoned water well must be plugged. It is a criminal offense to leave it unplugged.

4. Also since 1965, if water from a new well is to be used for human consumption, the well must conform to regulations published by the Department of Public Health as to location, construction, and modification.

These restrictions are insignificant compared with those imposed by laws in western states that limit the use of groundwater to certain purposes and amounts. If the Illinois water supply should ever become seriously inadequate, even in a part of the state, laws would probably multiply and the price of water would undoubtedly increase.

—Norm Krausz

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

Soybeans Rise As Stocks Shrink

Soybean prices jumped spectacularly when the quarterly report of supplies was released on April 25. While the stocks were larger than last year, they were not quite so large as the trade people had expected. According to the USDA report, stocks of soybeans on hand April 1 totaled 376 million bushels. This amount was 8 percent more than the year before and practically the same as two years before.

Farm Stocks Greater. Stocks of soybeans held on farms were estimated at 150 million bushels, or 53 percent more than last year and 17 percent more than two years ago. Farm stocks represented 40 percent of the total supply this year compared with only 28 percent last year.

Farmers owned most of the soybeans that were stored on farms. They also owned some of the beans that were stored in elevators. The government (CCC) had no soybeans on April 1—and had none the year before.

More Beans Under Price Support. Up to April 1, farmer had put 86 million bushels of soybeans under price support loans, nearly three times as much as the year before. They had redeemed nearly half of these beans, however. The amount remaining under price support at the beginning of April was 45 million bushels, 2½ times as much as last year.

Prices Over 1965 Levels. At this writing, soybean prices at Chicago are around $3.08 a bushel, up 8 cents from a year ago. The 8 cents is about equal to the price advance immediately after the official report of stocks on hand was released.

Soybean meal went up about $3.00 a ton at the same time. This advance lifted the price at Decatur to around $83.00 a ton compared with $69.00 a year earlier.

Soybean oil went up ¼ of a cent a pound. This rise put the price at around 12 cents a pound, about the same as last year.

Use and Exports Increase. During the seven months from September 1 to April 1, processors used 316 million bushels of soybeans, or 9 percent more than during the similar period a year earlier. During the month of March, they crushed 49½ million bushels, 21 percent more than last year.

Also during the seven months ending April 1, exports totaled 167 million bushels, up 27 percent from the year before. Exports continued large in April, the total for the first two weeks being about 50 percent greater than in 1965.

Foreign demand for soybeans seems likely to continue very strong. Supporting factors include (1) increasing prosperity in the industrialized nations, (2) the unpredictable situation in Vietnam and (3) intense food shortages in many hungry areas.

Demand for soybean meal in the U.S. is kept high by increasing production and good prices for cattle, hogs and poultry. Demand for soybean oil depends in part on our special government export programs.

Modern Samaritans Observe Old Rites

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Descendants of the Bible's good Samaritan gather atop a sacred mountain Thursday for a religious sacrifice that dates back to the time of Moses. But this year they will not be joined by members from Israel.

The Samaritans who live in Israel refused to cross through the Mandelbaum gate after Jordanian authorities turned back 22 for security reasons.

The Samaritans, a heretic sect of Jews, use their own lunar calculations in determining the Passover, which the rest of the Jews celebrated this year on April 4-12.

The 345 Samaritans in the world are divided by the barbed wire between Jordan and Israel. But the barbed wire is lowered for the ancient ritual of the Passover, when the survivors of the biblical sect converge around a round stone altar on Mt. Gerizim, 30 miles from Jerusalem.

This is not the Passover observed by the Orthodox, Reform and Conservative Jews.

In nearby Nablus, live 215 of the surviving Samaritans, worshiping at their white limestone temple, working at such crafts as carpentry or shoemaking, selling charms to Arab peasant women who consider them magicians, and exhibiting their religious treasures to tourists.

The other 130 come across the border once a year from Jaffa, Israel, for the Passover slaughter of lambs on the mountain, making the deliverance of the Israelites from Egyptian bondage.

The Samaritans were almost wiped out by the Greeks and Romans, and persecuted from Byzantine times till the 20th century, when their number dropped to about 200 and they faced extinction.

Now, with women converts marrying into the community, they are on the increase.

The Samaritans, the subject of Christ's first parable, have accepted virtual annihilation for the sake of continuing religious practices that set them apart from the rest of the world.

Jews claim the Samaritans were renegade Israelites who escaped the Jewish years of captivity in Babylon, mixed with the Gentiles, and falsified the religion.

The Samaritans call themselves the true believers.

Detroit's McLain Hurls 1-Hitter, 2-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Dennis McLain allowed only one hit—a second-inning single by J.C. Martin—as the Detroit Tigers nipped the Chicago White Sox 1-0 Friday night on Norm Cash's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the eighth.

After Martin's clean single to right leading off the second, McLain walked Tommy Agee and hit Don Buford with a pitch, loading the bases. He retired Tom McCraw to end that threat, then mowed down 21 of the last 22 batters he faced en route to his fourth victory in five decisions.

Ray Oyler led off the eighth with a double. McLain bunted him to third and was safe at first on Pete Ward's late throw. Ron Hansen threw Oyler out at the plate on Don Wert's grounder but Jerry Lumpe singled to left, filling the bases.

Jones' Home Run In Ninth Lifts Mets To 2-1 Edge

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleon Jones led off the bottom of the ninth inning with a home run, giving the New York Mets a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night.

Jones, making his first start in 10 days after being sidelined with a leg injury, smashed an 0-2 pitch from Chicago left-hander Ken Holtzman over the left-center field fence, snapping a 1-1 deadlock.

The homer gave Rob Gardner, a rookie southpaw, his first major league victory. Gardner gave up only four hits and drove in the first New York run with a double in the fifth.

Chicago's Ron Santo tied the score in the sixth with a two-out homer, his fourth of the season.

AVERT STRIKE AT SPORTSMAN'S PARK

CHICAGO (AP) — Horsemen called off a strike Friday over back purse distribution which threatened to cancel Saturday's program at Sportsman's Park.

A track spokesman said the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association and track management compromised their differences following an afternoon parley.

Thursday night the horsemen, headed by William Hal Bishop, voted 203-6 against entering horses in Saturday's program.

Bishop contended the track owed the horsemen $89,000 in back purses from the 1965 fall meeting.

Yanks Deny Keane On Way Out Soon

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees and CBS brass were kept busy Friday plugging the holes of rumors that Manager Johnny Keane won't last out the present road trip and General Manager Ralph Houk will step back in as field general of the skidding baseball club.

"It's kind of silly," Michael Burke, the Columbia Broadcasting System's vice president in charge of operations, said in answer to the report that he was pulling the strings behind the scenes and was preparing a shakeup in the chain of command.

"My dad Dan Topping, Sr. and Mr. Houk run the ball club, and I can tell you they are not currently contemplating any major moves," added Vice President Dan Topping, Jr., from the Yankees' Fifth Avenue towers. The elder Topping, club president, is ill in Florida.

"There is no significance to my being on the road with the team," said Houk, from Anaheim, Calif. "I always like to make the complete swing, at least early in the year.

Talking Of Trades

"Johnny Keane and I have been talking all day about moves and trades that might help the club. We're off to a bad start — can't get the hitting to go without pitching—but panic hasn't set in."

The Yankees, in ninth place in the American League standings with a 4-15 record, were in Anaheim for a game Friday night with California.

Meanwhile, rumors surrounding the reeling club, the richest and most successful in baseball, are multiplying.

Robert Sylvester, columist for the New York Daily News, wrote Friday that the real manager of the Yankees is Burke.

"If you think he is not managing the N.Y. Yankees, then tell me why Ralph Houk (the best bullpen catcher a team ever had, must spend breakfast, lunch, dinner and post time with new manager Burke," Sylvester said.

Says Keane Out

"Anyway, if you hear or overhear what Mr. Burke is saying you will gather that Johnny Keane, current field manager of the Yankees, is out . . . Mr. Houk, the boss of the bullpen, comes in as manager."

Burke said that CBS, which bought 80 per cent of the club for $11.2 million in August 1964 and later purchased the 10 per cent interest of Del Webb, said the network was dealing with the ball club as it would any of its other divisions.

"We don't interfere with the day-to-day operations," he added. "We let Topping and Houk do that. As in any other organization, if any major changes are required, they are made by the executive board."

Topping, Houk and Burke are members of the Yankee six-man board which also includes CBS executives William S. Paley, Dr. Frank Stanton and Joe Iglehart.

"We met last February," he said. "We haven't called another meeting."

Doug Clemens then batted for Darrold Knowles and struck out, but Jack Brandt singled in Rojas, cutting the Pirates' lead to 7-6, and Groat followed with his two-run single against Roy Face.

Brown Improving After Collision With Teammate

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Brown's first questions to his wife at Lenox Hill Hospital Friday morning were about their two young children in Cleveland.

Mrs. Brown was permitted to talk briefly with her husband, the Cleveland shortstop who suffered multiple fractures of the skull and other injuries in a collision with teammate Leon Wagner Wednesday night at Yankee Stadium.

Hospital officials said Friday that Brown was progressing satisfactorily.

"Larry still looks terrible," said Mrs. Brown. "He is pretty well banged up. Both of his eyes are closed, and he can just barely see through a little crack.

"He wanted to know first about the children, Laurie who is two years old and Leslie who is 16 months. He wanted to be sure my mother had come up from Florida to take care of them while I was here. And he wanted to make sure that everything was all right with me.

"Larry's brother, Dick has been in touch with me and the hospital."

Dick Brown, the Baltimore Orioles' No. 1 catcher, was stricken with a brain tumor during spring training and underwent surgery that put him out of baseball for at least the rest of the year

Owners-Players Squabble Could Stir Up A Storm

NEW YORK (AP) — The disagreement between the players and the owners over $150,000 a year to run the new players' office threatens to stir up a storm in the baseball world.

Marvin Miller, the steel union official who will head up the Major League Baseball Players' Association at $50,000 a year starting July 1, has met with Commissioner William D. Eckert, to discuss the situation.

The majors failed to approve the cash outlay from the pension fund at their joint meeting Tuesday but proposed further study.

It has been suggested that the player representatives, the pension committee and Major League Executive Council meet June 6, but the players prefer an earlier date, pointing out that May 16 is an open date for most clubs.

Will Suggest Solution

Miller said Friday he was ready to suggest a solution on the basis of his experiences with pension funds as assistant to the president of the United Steelworkers.

"As I understand it, there are objections to paying the $150,000 out of the pension fund. There may be some merit in that approach.

"However, each player pays $2 a day into the pension fund. If he stays the entire year of 172 days, that is $344 a year. Player contributions to the fund come to $194,000 a year. Of course, the big money comes from the radio-television receipts from the All-Star games and the World Series.

"I would propose they amend the pension contract, lessening the players' contributions by up to $150,000, making that fund available for the players' office.

"The pension fund would have $150,000 less in it. No money would have to be taken directly from the fund. The players would pay no more than they do at present."

Hart And Giants Edge Cards, 4-2

ST. Louis (AP) — Jim Hart tripled two runs across in the first inning, then scored on Julian Javier's error, and unbeaten Gaylord Perry gained his fourth victory as the San Francisco Giants defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 Friday night.

The Giants' big first inning began with Don Landrum's single and a walk to Willie McCovey. Hart then socked his triple and scored when second baseman Javier let Tito Fuentes' grounder go through him.

Bob Gibson, 2-3, retired the Giants in order from the second inning until the ninth, when Tom Haller homered with two out. Gibson struck out 14, a career high.

Baltimore Clips Indians In 15, 3-2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Boog Powell's pinch-hit, run-scoring single capped a two-run rally in the 15th inning that gave Baltimore a 3-2 victory over Cleveland Friday night.

The loss was only the Indians' second in 16 games this season while Baltimore increased its record to 13-3.

The end came in the last inning the teams could have played since a Baltimore city curfew says an inning cannot be started after 11:59 p.m. The game lasted four hours and 11 minutes.

Sam McDowell, who pitched one-hitters in his two previous starts, began the game for the Indians but left after allowing seven hits in 12 innings. Dave McNally limited Cleveland to three hits in 10 innings.

The teams were tied 1-1 going into the 15th, but the Indians scored off Dick Hall on singles by Rocky Colavito, Fred Whitfield and pinch hitter Leon Wagner.

The Orioles didn't waste any time tying the game again. Dave Johnson, leading off the bottom of the 15th, hit Bob Allen's first pitch into the left-field seats.

Freddie The Spook 'Services' Schools

(Second of a Series)
By SANDY PADWE

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The tournament was in a cramped, poorly lit recreation center in the Bronx, but the players were strictly the best of the five boroughs. Two of the teams were coached by Walter November and Hilton White.

Coach George Ireland of Loyola (Chicago) and coach Don Haskins of Texas Western know them well.

When Loyola won the national championship in 1963, two key players were Jerry Harkness and Ron Miller. November steered both boys to Loyola.

This year, Texas Western won the national championship. Three of its important players — Willie Worsley, Willie Cager and Nevil Shed — wound up in El Paso because White has "connections" with Texas Western.

White works for the New York City Department of Parks and Recreation. He coaches a team called the Falcons on which Cager played one season. This year White has two of the best high school players in New York on the same team. Both reportedly are going to Texas Western.

"Hilton White is just a friends," says Texas Western athletic director George McCarty. "He doesn't get paid for scouting. All he's doing is helping kids get an education."

November, who works for an insurance company, coached a team called the Reliables. At least four of its players — considered among New York's best — are headed for Loyola.

These men furnish the uniforms for the teams and usually buy the boys a hamburger and a milk shake after the game. There are other "coaches" who are banned from the postseason tournaments because they pay players for their services. Mike Tynberg, a former North Carolina recruiter, was banned this year.

"He had to go over to Jersey," one of his competitors said, "where they don't know him so well."

Tynberg's cohorts say he is "working for Marquette" these days.

"You don't mind spending the money," Tynberg once said, ". . . but when they go somewhere else you don't like it at all. These kids are funny. they're not very loyal."

For schools without a November, a White or a Tynberg, there are "independents" who sell information and service for "expense" fees.

"The NCAA knows all about me," boasted one free-lancer who is known as Freddie the Spook. "I'm not afraid of anything.

"Right now I'm working for about 40 different schools, although only 12 could be classified big time. The rest are junior colleges. That's a new market. They're hungry for ball players and they don't have to worry about breaking rules because they're not in the NCAA.

"I built a championship team for Coffeyville (Kan.) Junior College. They had all my kids and won the national title (1962).

"I go after the boys without the grades, the boys no one wants to touch. They go to the junior colleges, get their marks up and then go to the big schools. Chris Pervall, the leading scorer at Iowa the last two years, was one of my boys. He was at Coffeyville first. Al Lopes, who went to Kansas, was another.

"There are guys like me in all the big cities. Any college can contact them very simply. Lots of colleges have high school coaches working for them. I take pride in what I do, getting kids out of the slums and into a school.

"I have my expenses paid. The figures vary according to where I travel. Nine times out of 10 the payment doesn't come from the school involved. It usually comes from alumni, friends of the school or even the coach.

"I don't think it's wrong. Where there's talent to sell, there's always a buyer."

Freddie the Spook calls himself a "will-o-the-wisp." He's devious and suspicious and makes his own contacts with coaches on his own terms.

"He has called me about 50 times," one coach in Texas said. "He'll say, 'For $50. I'll get you a good guard or a good forward.'

"And then you can't get in touch with him, except by telegram. If there's something urgent and you have to phone, you call some Nedick's hot dog stand in New York. He's an amazing character. I don't know where he gets his information, but he knows when you're going to be in New York. Next thing, he's calling you in the hotel room, telling you about his 'kids'."

One Southern Conference coach met Freddie the Spook in a hotel lobby and excused himself to go up to his room and shave. He must have left the door ajar.

"I'm looking in the mirror," the coach recalled, "and there he is standing behind me. He's got the perfect nickname."

The coach shuddered.

Reed, Michigan Blank Illini 8-0

ANN HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Bob Reed pitched his third straight starting assignment shutout, scattering six hits, and led Michigan to an 8-0 Big Ten baseball victory over Illinois Friday.

matter of Fact

The kremlin was the central fortress in medieval Russian cities. It was usually situated on the high bank of a river or in the angle formed by the confluence of two rivers. Inside were located the cathedral, palaces for the bishop and prince, government-office buildings and stores for ammunition and provisions in case of siege. Several important cities such as Moscow, Smolensk and Novogorod were built around o' kremlins.

Polly's Pointers
Sweater Girl Has Problem

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have a white 100 per cent Orlon acrylic sweater which is about three sizes too large. Is there any way I can reduce its size? —ROSE.

DEAR POLLY — Recently I was in a group who sent flowers for a neighbor's funeral. We included the addresses after each name on the card. This way the relatives of the deceased do not have to spend hours trying to obtain the addresses of people they may never have heard of. I have gone through such an ordeal and am passing this on so that it might help others. — MRS. H. H. N.

DEAR POLLY — We used to manage a motel and had the problem of mattress pads slipping until I ran across the idea of placing the pad crosswise on a bed, pulling it taut and tucking the ends under the mattress. —MRS. D. P.

DEAR POLLY — Even if my Pointer is not worthy of a Polly Dollar it has saved me a good many dollars' worth of worry. Last year a new neighbor moved next door with a small daughter almost the age of our 3-year-old. They became great playmates but it became a problem when the two of them would decide to go play in one house or the other rather than out of doors. The other mother would look frantically for sight of the youngsters until we decided to put up a white cardboard (anything agreed upon would do) in a window to let the other mother know the children were in her house. The card was removed when they went back outdoors to play. I recommend this plan to other mothers with a similar problem. —MRS. C. C.

DEAR POLLY — When your silicon ironing board cover wears out there is usually a good end left. I take the good end, trace my hands on the silicon and pad it with three or four layers of scrap cloth stitched on like quilting. This makes a fine pair of oven mittens. I make longer ones for use for out-of-doors cooking. — MARY

Anyone submitting a Polly's Problem, a solution to a problem or a favorite homemaking idea will receive a dollar if Polly uses the item in Polly's Pointers.
